

GC ordinance for 1% sales tax placed on first reading

By GARY SCHNEIDER

Nearly unanimous support for a one percent sales tax in Granite City was expressed by the city's aldermen Tuesday night as they heard the 28-page sales tax ordinance read and voted 12 to 1 to place it on first reading.

Final passage of the new tax, which taxes food and groceries in addition to other merchandise, could come at the council's next meeting in five days. It is anticipated a one percent sales tax would bring the city between $1.5 million and $1.9 million annually.

A larger than normal audience was on hand for Tuesday night's meeting, but most appeared to be concerned about the city's proposed new zoning ordinance, which was to have been placed on first reading at the meeting. Since it required more than an hour to read the 28-page single-spaced sales tax ordinance on legal size paper (equivalent to about 60 normal pages double-spaced) and an accompanying document establishing a Granite City Department of Revenue to collect and administer the tax, the council did not have time to discuss the lengthy zoning ordinance before the 11 p.m. curfew for business contained in the city's by-laws.

Alderman Sam Whitmer of the Second Ward, the council's senior alderman, was the only one to vote against first reading approval of the sales tax, saying, "At the last meeting, a two percent sales tax on liquor and food (in restaurants) was proposed. I thought that was much fairer than a sales tax."

"I think that should have been passed and I think this should be passed, but it is far more detrimental than a tax on liquor and food (in restaurants)," Whitmer contended.

The vote follows a with the other 12 aldermen present voting to give initial approval to the sales tax. Alderman Steven Saltich of the Sixth Ward was the only council member absent.

City Attorney John Papa said the city sales tax ordinance copies, the state

Retailers' Occupation Tax "almost word for word," which was done to avoid confusion among the merchants. "What the state taxes, we tax," he told reporters. "Hopefully, there will be minimal confusion on the part of taxpayers in complying," he added.

He said the only major exception is that he eliminated a provision for securing real estate liens against businesses who failed to pay their proper tax, saying that he believes the ordinance carries sufficient penalties, including up to six months in prison and up to $1,000 per violation. "That should deter any violators," he told the council.

He explained that the city "sales tax" actually is a "supplemental Retailers' Occupation Tax," which taxes the merchants for what they sell but allows the merchants to pass that cost along to their customers.

The tax must be charged on all sales, with the exception of sales to charitable and not-for-profit organizations and sales to certain interstate commerce businesses now exempt from the state Retailers' Occupation Tax.

Papa said the only way the city could collect the receipts from a city sales tax would be to establish a city department to collect it and enforce it. If, at some time in the future, the state legislature enacts legislation authorizing the Illinois Department of Revenue to collect the tax for the city and disburse it, the city could abolish its revenue department. If it wished, the council was told.

Alderman Everett Morien of the First Ward said he feels the city could collect the tax for less than the state could and "we could put our own people to work here."

Mayor Paul Schuler agreed, saying that the state keeps two percent of the Retailers' Occupation Tax it collects for the city, which amounts to about $36,000 a year. "I don't think it is going to cost anywhere near that amount to collect the tax in our city," he contended.

Schools may borrow $3 million

By BILL WINTER

Borrowing projected at $3 million to $3.8 million in the education fund was outlined in a final budget adopted Tuesday night by the Granite City Board of Education.

The 1981-82 budget total is $27,739,266, up $1,717,060 from the 1980-81 budget of $26,022,206, which itself represented an increase of $1,744,034 over the 1979-80 year's $24,278,172.

Actual 1980-81 spending, excluding bonds and interest, amounted to $26,022,272. The 1981-82 final budget exceeds that level by $2,116,994 but includes some "worst scenario" allocations that are not expected to be spent in full.

During Tuesday night's meeting, the board unanimously ratified a two-year agreement with teachers calling for 10 percent salary schedule boosts this year and another 9 1/2 percent next year.

Said the district's negotiations with other employee groups are continuing.

—Went on record as noting that no school-closing recommendations have been prepared, discussed or acted upon.

—Reported there are 9,919 students (5,085 boys and 4,834 girls), compared to 10,200 last spring.

—And has no plans to stimulate student lunch participation; with the price raised to $1.25 and warm weather, pupils outdoors, cafeteria revenue has slumped 30 percent in the first few days of the fall term.

The new school district budget, in contrast to August's tentative budget, includes funds for employee raises.

Finance Director Norman S. Owca, reviewing appropriations for educational costs, said, "Cash flow and tax warrants are difficult to project due to the unknown status as to when—and how—much—various revenues will be received."

"However, based on this budget, it will be necessary to borrow approximately either $3,800,000 or $3,000,000 by June 25, 1982, depending on the date we receive our last double state aid payment check in June."

"Computation of the tax rate necessary to support the new budget has been made by anticipation of the necessary revenues, based on an estimated assessed valuation of $240

Madison group to oppose home rule

By MICK STRANGE

A citizens group called "Madison Concerned Citizens Against Home Rule" (MCCAHR) was formed last week in Madison.

In related action, the Madison City Council voted at its Tuesday night meeting to go on record to protect the pensions, jobs, and other benefits of all city employees should a Home Rule ordinance be passed.

Madison Mayor Mike Sasyk said to the council Tuesday, "I know there are a lot of pros and cons on Home Rule. There are a lot of rumors and and in-fighting and I would like to dispel them."

"I would like to ask the council to go on record tonight that should Home Rule pass, the city council will immediately pass ordinances reinstating the same protection that now exists in the Illinois State Statutes under the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners Act, the Police Pension Fund Municipalities (500,000 and under) Act, the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund (IMRF), and the Police Pension Act.

"These state laws do not apply to Home Rule cities unless ordinances covering them are adopted by the city council," Sasyk said.

On a role call vote all aldermen present voted to adopt such ordinances if Home Rule is initiated.

Fourth Ward Alderman Christ Costoff and Fifth Ward Alderman Don Garrett were not present when the vote was taken.

In an attempt to oppose Home Rule, a group of citizens has organized as the "Madison Concerned Citizens Against Home Rule" (MCCAHR).

William "Bill" Steiner is the chairman of the organization.

The objectives of the group are to make the taxpayers of Madison aware of the "unlimited power" of Home Rule cities, what effect it will have on the community and what steps can be taken to defeat it, Steiner noted.

According to Steiner, Home Rule would give the city administration (city council members) unlimited power in taxation, and basically on rules and regulations as to how the city is to be governed.

An informational telephone "Hot Line" is being established today (Thursday) by the MCCAHR committee from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m.

Some aldermen criticize Petrillo

Strong criticism of the inability of Granite City Treasurer Nick Petrillo to work full-time at his duties was leveled by some members of the city council during Tuesday night's meeting while other aldermen came to the defense of Petrillo, who has been ill.

Alderman Sharon Perjak of the Fourth Ward was blunt in her assault, stating, "We've got to either have him show up and do the duties or get somebody else to do it."

Mayor Paul Schuler commented, "I think you're right, but how are you going to do it?" However, Schuler came to the defense of the treasurer's office, saying that the office has been short of people and it has been difficult for those remaining to keep up with the workload of tax collection, paying bills and doing other city business.

Two employees resigned last year and have not been replaced, Schuler stated, noting that he was about to recommend a replacement for one that night.

Later in the meeting, he recommended that Mary Lou Allen, a former employee of the treasurer's office under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (manpower), be hired on the city's payroll at $800 a month to help out in the treasurer's office. The aldermen approved the hiring on a 12 to 1 vote with Alderman Carl Kittel of the Third Ward voting no. Alderman Steven Saltich was absent.

Schuler also said that the anticipated hiring of a full-time certified public accountant (CPA) should help straighten out many of the problems in the treasurer's office and speed bill payments by improving the cash flow in the office.

Mrs. Perjak retorted, "It would help if we had a treasurer at these meetings. We can't get an answer to our questions. Now we are going to hire a controller at $300 a year to do the job he (the treasurer) is elected to do. That man should get in and take over or get out of his office," she contended.

She said she visited the treasurer's office recently at 1:30 p.m. and found only one woman working "and the others standing around and talking." She contended one woman went to the store to get ice cream and took a half-hour. "It's hard for me to believe they are overworked," she stated.

Alderman Warren Deatour of the Fourth Ward noted that two of the women in Petrillo's office work for the sewage treatment plant, collecting treatment bills. Mrs. Perjak said that she works in an office and when another worker needs help, she helps out, which was not the attitude she found in the treasurer's office.

Alderman Mac Warfield of the Sixth Ward said he recently visited the treasurer's office and found things, "In a mess. They were not paying the bills that this city owes and if we can stop it now, we better stop it." He said there was only one typewriter in working condition and no attempts had been made to repair or replace the broken typewriter.

Mrs. Perjak said she found that the acting deputy treasurer, Florence Austin, did not feel that she had the authority to expend city funds to repair

$695,000 is 1981 United Way quota

The Tri-Cities Area United Way announced Tuesday a quota of $695,000 to be raised during the 1981 campaign, which was launched at a kick-off breakfast.

An estimated 240 persons attended the Tuesday morning meeting and breakfast in the Township Building, 2080 Delmar Ave.

Buddy W. Davis, district director of the United Steelworkers of America, was principal speaker at the meeting of campaign workers and supporters. Breakfast was served at 7:30 a.m.

He emphasized the necessity of labor and management working together to achieve the goal in behalf of the United Way agencies and to nullify "the efforts of those sitting on the sidelines and working to take it all for themselves."

Davis was introduced by Buddy Means, director of the Steelworkers subdistrict in Granite City.

Leo Korzen, Granite City attorney, served as master of ceremonies. The kick-off breakfast program included music by Stan and John Fornasewski and their Musical Delights and a song by Randy Volmar. Comments were made by Lawrence Earnley on the help he received from the Red Cross, a United Way agency, during the April 3 tornado in Granite City.

William Donovan, works manager at American Steel Foundries and president of the United Way during 1981, announced the new quota and urged team work by the vice-chairmen and their solicitation teams to meet the quota.

Donovan also listed a breakdown of quotas for each division and its campaign workers.

Venice school budget action due Sept. 24

A public hearing on the Venice School District's 1981-82 budget, totaling $1,899,285, was held Monday night despite an absence of citizens to hear the budget, plus a lack of quorum among board members.

Adoption of the budget, up $49,630 over the 1980-81, was delayed until a special meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 24.

The new budget was tentatively adopted by the board at its July 27 session and those attending the public hearing agreed to recommend its final adoption on Sept. 24.

Venice Supt. of Schools Robert N. Vickers said a regular meeting, scheduled Sept. 28, was advanced to Sept. 24 to afford the board a further opportunity to appoint a new member to fill the unexpired term of Larry D. Boyd, who resigned Aug. 24.

Arthritis seminar Sept. 22

More than $850 million is wasted annually on worthless arthritis "cures" and remedies, probably because people have more misinformation about arthritis than any other common disease.

Some of the most common misconceptions about arthritis, according to information provided by the Arthritis Foundation, include statements like: "Nothing much can be done for arthritis;" "Arthritis is mostly an old person's disease;" and "It's all right to diagnose and treat oneself for arthritis." All of these statements are untrue.

What is true is that arthritis is the nation's number one crippling disease, but with proper treatment, crippling can often be prevented and pain controlled.

In spite of the belief that arthritis is an old person's disease, rheumatoid arthritis can start in infancy, and there are at least 250,000 children in the United States who have juvenile rheumatoid arthritis.

As for self-treatment for arthritis, the time spent on home remedies or quick cures delays the initiation of proper treatment, allowing the arthritis to do further joint damage.

Not only is arthritis costly in terms of human suffering, afflicting an estimated 31,600,000 Americans, it is expensive in terms of hard cash. In addition to the millions of dollars spent on worthless cures, arthritis costs Americans $4.8 billion in lost wages each year, with an additional $995 million in lost income taxes to the Federal Government.

In spite of the pain and cost of arthritis, it is not a hopeless disease. Diagnosis and medical treatment begun before irreversible joint damage takes place can usually save a patient from the serious effects of the disease.

Where can people learn the facts about arthritis? Arthritis will be the topic of a community seminar at St. Elizabeth Medical Center on Sept. 22 at 7 p.m. in the PASCAL Hall.

Featured speaker will be Dr. Edward Rose, specialist in internal medicine and rheumatology, who is on staff at Memorial Hospital in Belleville and Oliver Anderson Hospital in Maryville, Illinois. Dr. Rose is also a consultant at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Belleville. The seminar will also include a film presented by the Arthritis Foundation. There is no charge for this seminar and refreshments will be served.

Reservations may be made by calling the Public Relations office at St. Elizabeth Medical Center at 798-3187.

Two classes at SEMC for expectant mothers

Two informational programs to provide assistance and guidelines for better health for expectant mothers are available at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, free of charge.

Registered nurses volunteer their time to give instruction and lead discussions on questions the mothers have regarding the entire pregnancy.

The initial course which is termed Early Pregnancy Classes is structured for women through the fourth and fifth month and is scheduled to begin on Wednesday, Sept. 23 from 6:30 to 8:30.

The session is planned for three classes to meet at McKinley School. Pre-registration is not required but is helpful to the instructor and may be done by calling 798-3038.

Topics to be covered include body condition, diet, exercises, infant nutrition. There also will be lectures and films and those attending are requested to bring two pillows and wear loose fitting clothing. Other than the nurse-instructor there also will be a dietitian to discuss nutrition for the expectant mother and especially for those who plan to breast feed the new infants.

The second segment of the program is the Prenatal 5-week course which meets on Tuesday and Thursday nights for two hours. Those attending may choose which night they prefer and the sessions are also held at McKinley School.

To register for the latter course, that is to begin on Thursday, Sept. 24, those interested are advised to call 798-3038.

St. John Lutheran mortgage burning events planned

The second in a series of three mortgage burning events will take place on Sunday at St. John Lutheran Church, St. Clair and Dale avenues, marking the 22nd anniversary of the church building.

Rev. Samuel Boda will deliver a message based on Romans 13:8, "debt-free, and yet never really—New goals and challenges will be placed before the congregation as it begins a new chapter in its history, the minister explained.

Holy communion will be celebrated and the church organizations that sponsored the raising projects to help reduce the debt will be recognized. Organist will be Mrs. June Barton of St. Clair. Assisting in the chancel will be Seminarian Joe Judge at the 10:30 a.m. service with Sunday School and Bible classes to start at 9:15 a.m.

The Women's Service Guild will serve refreshments following the service in the fellowship hall.

During last week's rally day and youth Sunday service, the release deed was officially burned in the chancel by Joseph C. Cell of Josphus, Texas, with the president of the congregation, Harold Hackney, holding the container for the ashes.

He served as chairman of the building committee in the late 1950's when the new edifice was in process of construction. He also was the president of the congregation when the mortgage was obtained in December 1963.

The final service will be Sept. 27 when the mortgage papers will be burned in the chancel. Guest preacher will be the Rev. Dr. John Kovac of St. Louis.

A banquet will follow featuring color slides of the building of the new church. Banquet chairman is John Severine Sr. and chairman of the mortgage burning committee is Harold Gebhardt.

FINED FOR CONDUCT
Richard Claspill, 39, of 900 N. Broadway Ave. was fined $35 Monday afternoon for disorderly conduct. He was arrested at N. Broadway and Madison avenues at 1:45 p.m. Sunday for allegedly creating a disturbance at a funeral home.

Wife — teacher's salary still too low

By BILL WINTER

For it is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God. The wife of a Granite City teacher sees no such "rich man" problem for her family, asserting that her husband's income is small despite a public perception that it is large.

The pay is still too low, despite newly authorized raises, she asserts. Contacting the Press-Record, she said she is displeased with news coverage of this month's agreement between teachers and the school district.

One of the points that she feels has confused taxpayers—reference to "average salaries"—originated in a public statement by the school district. All statements released by the school system and by the Granite City Federation of Teachers were published in full in Press-Record articles.

"You gave both sides, but included too many 'zingers' about the teachers," she said in voicing her belief that many citizens have become unsympathetic to the needs of faculty members.

Another point is that she assumes Federation Local 743 was "forced to buy an advertisement" in order to present its message to the public.

A full-page ad appeared in the Aug. 27 edition, but the same statement appeared in the news coverage and would have been published whether or not an ad was purchased.

Another point of dissatisfaction: "Why was the ad put 'way back on Page 26'?"

She says that, while school officials claim to be doing all they can to provide funds to meet salaries and other costs, in some recent years they allowed tax rates to fall below the rates authorized by the voting public. They say this happened because they misjudged the amount of assessment they could gain.

Her comment that not all teachers receive the average pay and that not all are paid the maximum is, of course, true. The newspaper said Sept. 8 that the new two-year agreement (adopted Tuesday night, Sept. 15) calls for annual salaries ranging from $12,947 to $24,962 at present and from $14,144 to $27,270 in the fall of 1982.

For those with bachelor degrees and in the first year through 14th year of teaching, base pay for the 1981-82 year is $12,947, $13,552, $14,338, $15,246, $16,214, $16,940, $17,545, $18,150, $18,755, $19,360, $19,965, $20,570, $21,175, $21,780, and $22,385.

There also are salary schedule columns for teachers with bachelor degrees and a total of 150 college credit hours, bachelor degree and 175 hours, master degrees, and master degrees with 190 or more credit hours. The latter column varies from $14,157 to $24,962 this fall, not counting the school district's pension contribution.

In 1982-83, the lowest pay will be $14,144 plus $800 pension and the highest will be $27,270 plus $1,008 pension.

These figures do not include extra-curricular pay, which goes to those handling various club sponsorships, coaching or other school-related extra work.

The teacher's wife who contacted the newspaper also is unhappy with simultaneous discussion of teachers' pay raises and the prospect that school officials may close buildings and/or reduce staff size in the future.

"They were going to reduce the teaching staff, anyway, regardless of what the teachers settled for this fall," she said. "The new agreement has nothing to do with it."

While her frustration over the public's impression of teacher pay relates to Granite City and 1981, some people like the teacher's wife believe have developed across the nation in recent years:

1. Fewer and fewer communities are receptive to taxpayer revolts. Voters usually fight such cost increases in the relatively few instances where they have a direct voice, such as in school tax rate elections.

2. Meanwhile, voters elect and re-elect legislators and other officials. Officials spend far more of the voters' tax money at the state and federal levels than do the local governmental agencies. But these spending authorizations by taxpayers are indirect, voted by the legislators rather than by the public.

3. Inflation-squeezed public employees, particularly at the community level, often take the brunt of the inflation-squeezed taxpayers' increasingly negative attitude toward taxation.

The local public was not always reluctant to spend money on schools and school employees.

In Granite City, numerous tax rate and construction proposals won overwhelmingly from the population group and as the district expanded its facilities, curriculum and services.

Just as in the earlier elections, the Press-Record and the population group went in favor of the latest school referendum last fall. Few people disagreed publicly with the need for more school funds. There was a big "silent" vote that brought a 2-1 defeat.

Public employees nationally are concerned that the "taxpayer revolt" is gaining too much momentum and could be destructive to the quality and adequacy of governmental services.

Anti-tax groups not only oppose increasing the existing tax rate levels but seek to reduce them. Voters in November 1980 lowered three of the tax rate limits of the Madison County government.

Many public employees and other labor groups are critical of the Reagan administration, which persuaded Congress to enact a 25 percent income tax cut this summer, to be phased-in over a three-year period beginning next month.

Chuck Burdeen of the Illinois Federation of Teachers reports that "hundreds of teachers from across the state of Illinois will join with tens of thousands of unionists from across the country in a demonstration in Washington on Saturday, Sept. 19, which has been proclaimed Solidarity Day by the AFL-CIO."

"Teachers will be leaving from key locations around the state by car and by bus to converge upon Washington, D.C. for this historic event."

While the American Federation of Teachers and other AFL-CIO groups are concerned about some of the federal government's policies and financial cutbacks, the AFT's Illinois wing is pleased with the progress it is making in two fields:

1. Persuading school systems to improve pay and working conditions.

2. Persuading teachers to affiliate with the Federation rather than the Illinois Education Association, a division of the National Education Association.

Burdeen says, "The IFT, with hundreds of contracts open around the state, has successfully concluded most negotiations for the 1981-82 school year."

IFT locals were forced to strike in only four districts statewide—Granite City, Zeligler-Royalton, Hillsboro and Pontiac-Holladay. (Granite City teachers did not formally call a strike; 865 of 890 declined to report for duty until a settlement was reached.)

"According to IFT Executive Secretary-Treasurer Ken Drum, 'All of the settlements arrived at through work stoppages produced gains for teachers and an equitable settlement in general.'"

"Several hundred units were successful in negotiating new pacts without the need for job action," Burdeen continues. "A few units around the state continue to negotiate. At this time, the IFT considers none of these situations to be critical.

To date, 1981-82 salary settlements across the state have won seven percent to 14 percent, with an average of 11 percent, plus increments (incentive raises) recognizing an additional year of service by the employees.

"Many units report improving working condition clauses, fringe benefits and professional articles within the negotiated agreements."

"The IFT continues its drive to represent all teachers in Illinois. A growing number of school districts continue to leave the IEA and move to the IFT."

Latest additions are Staunton Education Association, which voted 35-2 to switch from IEA to IFT and will become a council of Macoupin Federation of Teachers Local 528, and the Morris district 4 central Illinois, where the former IEA unit voted 77-0 to drop the IEA and join the IFT.

"The 55 teachers in south suburban district 132, Calumet Park, have voted to disaffiliate from the IEA and become affiliated with the IFT. This brings the total of locals that have rejected the IEA to 107 of 117."

"Teachers in the Belleville Area College have agreed to a merger between the IFT and American Association of University Professors. The charter application has now been formally agreed to by all parties."

"In the past five years, the difference between the two organizations, IEA and IFT, has shrunk from 27,000 to a base of 4,000."

"With IFT growth continuing at this pace, IFT President Robert Healey has estimated majestic status for the Illinois Federation of Teachers within a very short time."

Terry Herndon, executive director of the National Education Association, doesn't foresee his group going out of existence but he does see hard times ahead for the teaching profession.

"This country's schools are facing fiscal stress that has not been exceeded in many decades—maybe since the Depression."

Miss Rochelle Horvath, a lobbyist for the American Federation of Teachers, was the transportation coordinator for the mammoth 1983 civil rights march and demonstration in Washington, and is one of those arranging Saturday's rally in the nation's capital.

She says participation by several hundred thousand persons this weekend might encourage Democrats who have been voting for the Republican administration's budget reductions to oppose them in the future.

She adds, "We may be able to hold off some of the additional budget cuts the president wants, gain extension of the voting rights act, and pull together some other legislative victories. The AFT and other unions saw this march as the first step in the 1982 election."

Nationally, schools have reduced the number of their professional employees by about 20,000 this fall, although only 20,000 positions would have had to be eliminated due to smaller enrollments, projections indicate. At fault is the combination of local, state and federal fund restrictions.

While many school systems agree with their faculties that average class size should not be allowed to grow too large, some of the systems with deficits nevertheless try to curtail teaching staffs. They point out that payroll costs make up about two-thirds or three-fourths of the overall budget.

A few districts seek to economize—and to get voters' attention—by targeting sports, music, art and other popular activities and services for elimination or special fees. This sometimes triggers a reverse "tax revolt" by citizenry interested in seeing such programs perpetuated.

YOUTH STRIKES MAN

A youth wearing a red baseball cap struck William O'Brien of the YMCA over the head and pushed him to the ground as the man walked in the alley near 1338 Nineteenth St. at 11:15 p.m. Sunday. The youth, who had dark, shoulder-length hair, fled with two others in a brown station wagon when a passerby shouted to him.

Attend World Book conference

Dr. Alice Purdes, a local Book Encyclopedia, Childcraft, the How and Why Library, and The World Book Dictionary, among other educational materials.

Nearly 1,500 World Book salespeople attended the meeting at the Washington Sheraton Hotel.

Highlights of the conference included appearances by George Burns, country singer Terri Gibbs, and newspaper humorist Art Buchwald. Gibbs, blind since birth, recently helped the company launch The Talking World Book, the first encyclopedia ever recorded for the blind and partially sighted.

World Book attendees also heard that the 1981 edition of the Encyclopedia Buying Guide gave World Book an excellent rating in nine of ten evaluative categories—more than any other set reviewed. The set was judged to be reasonable.

Over $50,000 worth of prizes were given away at the conference, called Extravaganza '81.

Venice school

the effective date of resignation to appoint its own member.

After 30 days, a state statute mandates an appointment must be made within 15 days by the regional superintendent of schools.

Board Member Wilbert Glasper was appointed temporary chairman to conduct the public hearing, with Member George Wade serving as secretary.

The only other board member present Monday night was Alvester Seimons.

Board President Jack Tolliver had notified the administrator he would be on vacation this week and Member Raymond Mosby is in the hospital, Supt. Vickers said.

John Mangiaracino, the sixth member of the board, has not attended a meeting since Sept. 5, 1980.

The question of Mangiaracino having attended only five board meetings since he was elected April 12, 1980, was raised by a Venice citizen at the school board's June 8 meeting.

No action has been taken, so far, to correct the fact the board has been functioning with only six members.

At Monday night's public hearing, only two changes were made to the 1981-82 budget from the figures published in the July 30 issue of the Press-Record, which listed the total budget as $1,581,425.

The sum of $6,500 was added to the education fund to meet anticipated higher insurance costs, hiring of substitute teachers and possible leasing of a delivery education vehicle.

A decrease of $2,200 also was noted in the education fund brought about by the elimination of the salary of a board treasurer. The duties are now performed by Glasper at no cost to the school district.

As a precautionary measure, an additional $1,300 was listed in the transportation fund to further cover the expense of hiring a bus driver.

Until the program was recently discontinued, the Venice School District used Manpower employees as bus drivers.

Total amount added to the previously published budget was $7,800.

mented on the need for meeting the quota to aid all of the organization's agencies.

Melvin Wilmameyer, UW campaign chairman, spoke briefly to urge close teamwork in soliciting for the fund drive and said he was eagerly accepting Donovan's challenge to meet the drive goal.

Wilmameyer, president of the First Granite City National Bank, has National Bank of several hundred volunteers to contact employees, residents, stores, industries, professionals and organizations.

Subsequent report meetings are to be held at noon in the YMCA on Oct. 2, 16 and 30, with a final report session scheduled Nov. 13.

Participating agencies of the United Way include Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Catholic Charities, Protestant Welfare, Salvation Army, Coordinated Youth Services, United Way Information and Referral Service, Madison County

Urban League, AFL-CIO Community Services.

Also the Tri-City Association for Retarded Citizens, Visiting Nurses, Alcoholic Rehabilitation Home, Red Cross Chapter and its Disaster Program, One-to-Four Family Burnout Assistance, Children's Home and Aid Society, Clothing and Furniture Exchange, Tri-City Area YMCA, Arthritis Foundation and Family Counseling Center.

Help available for laid-off workers

The Metropolitan Re-Employment Project (MRP), with offices at 1254 Niedringhaus Ave., is a new service helping laid-off workers rejoin the work force.

The service is unique in that it offers a one-to-one counseling approach to teach job search skills, information on training programs, placement assistance and referral to social service agencies.

Brenda Derby, the local MRP representative said, "No longer can you just walk into a place and come out with a job. Job hunting is hard work."

"We will help with practical ideas for effective job hunting in today's highly competitive job market."

Persons that have been laid off and are seeking job, may telephone MRP at 676-2383 for an appointment and more information.

The MRP is an outplacement program designed to assist employees and employers presently affected by the structural changes taking place in the metropolitan economy.

Due to the numerous plant closings, employees are faced with permanent layoffs.

The project was initiated because community leaders recognized that there was a demand for a service designed to assist this particular group of displaced workers in efforts to gain new employment, according to Derby.

The principle source of funding for the project is the United States Department of Labor, Employment and Training Administration.

The project was initiated by the St. Louis Regional Commerce & Growth Association and the New Spirit of St. Louis Labor-Management Committee.

The program is operated by St. Louis Community College at Forest Park.

Considering a combination of fruit and a live plant to make an attractive arrangement? The plant can be kept in its pot and placed in a larger basket or decorative container with the fruit. Prevent moisture seepage by using plastic, not clay, saucers. Use wadded paper, florist's foam or sheet moss to support and raise the fruit. It is also a good idea to keep botanical families together in the arrangement. In addition to last week's suggestions, try grape ivy and grapes or pineapples and bromeliads.

If you would like suggestions on a different type of centerpiece ask our designers at BETTY AND BOB'S FLOWERS AND GIFTS, 2156 Pontoon Road, 677-6633. It doesn't have to be a special occasion to put a centerpiece on your table. Make any dinner a festive one with beautiful flowers from us. Hours: Monday thru Sat. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

FLOWER TIP:

Pontoon plans raises for police staff

A resolution is being prepared for pay increases of 12 percent for patrolmen and eight percent for sergeants and other police department staff, following a vote of the Pontoon Beach Board during a regular meeting last week.

The verbal resolution was presented by Bob Abel, board member, and will be prepared in written legal form for the next meeting.

Abel did not include a pay increase for police dispatchers which caused Lynn Wilson to object. Wilson said, "If we're going to give a raise, then everyone should be included."

Abel, a member of the police committee, explained the committee had not decided on an increase for dispatchers but did promise that an increase will be studied and decided on as soon as possible.

Fall activities for seniors

Off-duty officer attacked

Two men face state charges in connection with an attack on an off-duty Granite City officer in Corral Louisa, 3304 Namek Road, at 12:30 a.m. today.

Patrolman Jerry Duncan said he was a male friend entered the lounge and sat down at a bar stool when Dana H. Wallace, 26, of 4512 Edwardsville Road, approached him.

Wallace, who Duncan says he has arrested before, called Duncan by name and said he had been waiting a long time for the opportunity to beat the policeman. Profanity and threats followed. It was alleged, and Duncan warned him that he would be arrested, if the disturbance continued.

Wallace allegedly struck Duncan's face with his elbow, knocking him from the bar stool and spitting the officer's lower lip. Duncan then informed the man that he was under arrest and alleged that Wallace raised his fist again and Duncan punched Wallace. A struggle ensued, during which Steve Hein, 26, of 5 Rose Lane, allegedly jumped on Patrolman Duncan's back, aiding Wallace.

The brawling called police and officers arrived, and Wallace and Hein were arrested. Wallace has been charged with aggravated battery, resisting a police officer, assault and disorderly conduct. Hein was charged with aggravated battery and disorderly conduct. The charges against both men were signed on state complaint forms by Duncan.

In addition to the split lip, Duncan suffered a cut to his right cheek and lost his wristwatch in the scuffle.

Upon learning of Mr. Ebersoldt's death, Mike Sasyk, mayor of Madison, said, "He spent many years in public service and was the type of individual who liked to get involved in a wide variety of area activities. He will be missed by the area."

Mayor Echols of Venice said this morning, "I cut my political teeth on Mike Ebersoldt and Dr. Lee. His savvy in politics was a great help to me and throughout the county. He was a very compassionate leader and a politician who never forgot how to have the common touch."

Mayor Paul Schuler of Granite City also said he was sorry to learn of Mr. Ebersoldt's death and said he will be missed as much in Granite City as in Venice, since so much of his work benefited this city and the county.

"I liked Mike Ebersoldt. He had a wealth of knowledge about the levee district and politics in general and he was a hard worker who worked well for his people."

Mr. Ebersoldt's survivors and funeral arrangements, including Masonic and Odd Fellows services, may be found in today's obituary column.

According to Steiner, persons interested in information on Home Rule may call 432-8150 and discuss the various aspects of the issue.

At the council meeting, Mayor Sasysk asked the aldermen for permission to send Casper S. Nighossian to attend Illinois Commerce Commission hearing on Tuesday, Sept. 22 in reference to the question of a utility tax on a tax.

"We are very much opposed to the utility companies being allowed by the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) to figure the tax this way."

"The ICC has ruled they can. However, it does not appear in state statutes. It is an apparent administrative ICC decision and not legislative action."

Sasysk pointed out that the utility tax would reduce a persons overall tax bill about 12 percent, as the city property tax is scheduled to be dropped next year.

"We have been in touch with the Illinois Municipal League and are getting all the facts together on Home Rule. We should have the latest up to date information within the next couple of days."

"This factual information will then be given to the press and the aldermen so that everyone in Madison will be able to study facts and make up their own minds. If people will study the Home Rule and taxation issue objectively, I am certain they will see this is needed and the best thing in the long run for our taxpayers," Sasysk said.

In opposition to what the Mayor said, Steiner told the Press-Record, "An example of the unlimited power of which the taxpayers have no knowledge, was the recent utility tax imposed."

"This type of taxation is just one of the many that can be imposed, giving the governing body endless power to tax, which means no limit."

"Everyone will be affected. However, the senior citizens and low income families will suffer the most."

"In order to defeat the Home Rule issue, I am asking everyone to band together and vote no on this issue in November," Steiner emphasized.

City Comptroller Al Hudzik said Tuesday night after the meeting, "Home Rule does give broad taxing powers, but we need to be realistic."

There is the practical side and the technical side of any issue. The aldermen are not going to pass a lot of taxes. These men would be voted out of office if they did.

"Take a look at the problems the Granite City council is having on, deciding on what type of tax to pass. The Granite City aldermen know they have to be elected by the voters, so they are being very careful and having a lot of discussion on what type of tax to levy."

"The same type of practical thinking will go on by our aldermen, because they too have to be elected by the people," Hudzik noted.

Jim Biss, who was defeated by Sasysk in the last election for mayor, has advertised in the Press-Record his automotive business for sale due to Riskovsky alleging the taxing power will drive the small business man out.

He stated that he figured the new utility tax would be up with him paying at least double or possibly triple what he pays in city property tax.

"If Home Rule is passed the town (Madison) will go down the tubes just like East St. Louis as more taxes on business simply drives them out of the community."

"I ask myself this, 'Why is Granite City having so many financial problems, and it is in Home Rule city?'"

"The senior citizens and the low income groups will really be hurt," Riskovsky alleged.

Members of the MCACRH committee by precinct are: Almy Besserman and Don Wilson in precinct two, Oliver Mason in five, Al Edickoff in six, Lloyd Shrum in seven, Tom George in eight, Michael Zun and Riskovsky in nine.

Announce top winners in antique sports car show

Robert and Ardis Thorpe of Seneca won three top awards at the 30th annual Antique Auto and Sports Car meet held Sept. 12 in Springfield, Secretary of State Jim Edgar announced.

"Best of Show" trophies were awarded to their 1907 Ford in Division One and 1911 Ford in Division Two. The 1911 Ford also won the special Marquis award honoring the products of the Ford Motor Division.

Two other "Best of Show" awards were won by Robert Williams of Chatham for his 1923 Buick in Division Four, and John Eastland of Rock Island for his 1950 MG in Division Five.

Among award winners was Morris B. Chapman of Granite City who placed third in the category for electric steamers and high wheelers.

Edgar, who was co-ordinator of the meet, said 187 vehicles were entered in the competition.

"The Antique Auto and Sports Car Meet has been an excellent tradition for many years," Edgar said. "It is one of the foremost events for antique auto enthusiasts throughout Illinois to come together and show the hard work they have put into their vehicles while helping to raise money for charities."

Proceeds from the meet will go to the Illinois Heart Association.

Donate $100,000 to controllers

President Lloyd McBride of the United Steelworkers of America has announced that the International Executive Board of the 1.3-million member union has unanimously voted to contribute $100,000 to the families of striking air line controllers.

McBride said that the contribution from the union's Strike and Defense Fund would go to the strike assistance program of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization (PATCO), for the assistance of the families of PATCO strikers. The action was taken at the meeting of the board at the Union Education Center in Dawson, Pa., on August 31.

WOMAN INJURED—Janet Striever, 20, Ferguson, Mo., was admitted to St. Elizabeth Medical Center during the weekend for treatment of lacerations to the left shoulder, right leg and ankle and right knee. She sustained the injuries in a motorcycle accident.

The figures for the ROT the state distributed to the city this month show that of $154,000 collected, $3,081 was retained as the cost of collection and the remaining $150,919 was distributed to Granite City. In the current fiscal year, which ends April 30, 1982, the city estimates that it will receive $1,892,275 from the state ROT and the state will keep $378,455.

Since the current Retailers' Occupation Tax of one percent and the proposed city sales tax of one percent are identical and tax the same purchases, the figures for the city tax are expected to be the same as the figures for the state tax.

That can be used as "a check and balance" to determine if merchants are paying their fair share of the tax, Papa said, noting that the city's income from the tax on a given month can be compared to what the state collected on the one percent ROT tax and disbursed to the city. If the two figures do not correlate, the city can begin investigating which businesses are not paying identical sums to the city and to the state, he indicated.

City officials agreed they do not know how many employees would be required to administer the tax.

Papa also admitted he does not know whether a city-collected sales tax is legal, although one now is being collected in Chicago which brings that city's total sales tax to seven percent. "It hasn't been challenged yet in Chicago. The fact it has not been challenged in Chicago doesn't mean that it's legal," Papa warned.

Alderman Casmer Skubish of the First Ward asked for input in supporting the city tax. "We need the cooperation of all segments of our society. There is so much resentment of the utility tax and the real estate tax. This seems to be the best opportunity to get out of the woods. If there is opposition, there will probably be a court case, right?" he asked Papa.

The attorney answered, "It's possible."

Opposition to the proposed city tax began growing immediately after the meeting. One auto dealership, who estimated such a tax could add up to $100 to the price of a car, predicted that persons will buy their cars in other city and force local dealerships to move to areas where there is no such tax.

A local stereo salesman noted that a one percent additional tax on a $2,000 stereo would amount to $20, which, he contended, is enough to drive business to the larger St. Louis stereo stores. The total sales tax then would be 6 1/4 percent, amounting to $125 on a $2,000 stereo.

Some aldermen

or replace typewriters. Mayor Schuler agreed that there was a problem with typewriters, but when he learned of it, he authorized the leasing of another typewriter to alleviate the problem.

Alderman Sam Whitmer of the Second Ward commented, "I want to say this of Florence (Austin). The city owes her a debt of gratitude. Many days, you find her in there after 5 p.m. working and working hard."

He warned against any effort to oust Petrillo from the treasurer's job, saying, "The people elected him and the people can tell him if they want to keep him."

Schuler commented, "Some time, the board of directors (council) are going to have to stop giving advice and chip in to help try to get the job done." He said there has been great improvement in the city treasurer's office in recent weeks, the bills are being paid and added, "It will be checked on all the time. It's being checked every day now."

Seventh Ward Alderman Paul Ray Bowler, chairman of the council's finance committee, said he has received several job applications in response to legal advertisements for a CPA for the city. Alderman Paul Fisk said he feels that the need to hire more people for the treasurer's office is "a dilemma. We are going back on what we've done (the recent layoffs and hiring freeze), but it has to be done or we are going to be in a worse shape."

Mayor Schuler noted that one of the stipulations when layoffs of city employees began was that there would be no layoffs in the city clerk's or city treasurer's offices. Since that time, two employees of the treasurer's office resigned and were not replaced.

Alderman Jake Vozdant made a motion that the applications from the CPAs be referred to the finance committee with a 30-day limit for them to make a recommendation to the council. Whitmer said he hopes to see such deadlines imposed on such important decisions, but Schuler said he is sure the committee will act, and receive, an extension of time, if one is needed.

Guide to machine rental costs

By RONALDE CORNWELL

Extension Farm Adviser
Each year many farmers in Madison County harvest a few acres of corn or soybeans for a neighbor. In these situations, the farmer is doing this as a favor for the neighbor and wants to charge just enough to cover his cost. The rate he should charge for custom harvesting in this situation would be different from the rate he might charge if he is actually doing custom work on a commercial basis. To help the farmer decide what rate to charge for various custom operations, we have available at the extension office a new "Guide for Adjoining Custom Rates and Machine Rental Rates for 1981-82." Farmers may obtain a copy of this information by contacting the extension office. The guide provides the latest information on the break-even costs of various farm machinery operations. This figure is arrived at by considering the latest cost figures on new machinery, fuel and labor. A person doing custom work can use these figures as a guide and adjust the rate upward to a fair custom rate for his situation.

With the high rate of inflation, machinery cost and other cost may change drastically in one year's time. If you haven't checked the recent cost of machine operation, you may want to check this fall.

According to Walker Kirby, U of I Extension plant pathologist, farmers throughout the state will have to contend with stalk rot problems this fall.

Stalk rots are caused by common fungi and bacteria that attack plants approaching maturity. Because there are so many pathogens able to cause stalk rots, it's often difficult to isolate a specific micro-organism.

There are several steps a grower can take in reducing the problem of stalk rot. Growers should select resistant hybrids and varieties adapted to the area. Be sure to plant sound, disease free seed treated with a fungicide. Maintain balanced soil fertility, especially between nitrogen and potassium, by applying fertilizer based on soil test results. The plant population should be adjusted to the particular hybrid or variety fertility level, soil type and available soil moisture in the field.

These are just a few suggestions that will help reduce stalk rot problems.

Last year several corn producers had a problem with aflatoxin in grain stored on the farm. The question has been raised this year about the possibility of aflatoxin being spread from old corn to new corn in a storage bin.

This is not a problem. It is suggested that farmers clean out their bins before filling with new corn. For mold to develop in corn, the right conditions must be present. This is more likely to occur in stress damaged corn in the field.

September is the right time to fertilize your bluegrass lawn. You may apply the needed fertilizer as an application in September or split the application between September or October.

Cool weather fall rains and application of fertilizer will produce surprising results. If you have been mowing close, change the cut to 2 1/2 inches during the fall period. Tall mowing helps to smother small weeds while the larger grass blades manufacture more reserve energy.

For additional information on lawn fertilization, contact the Extension Office and request a free copy of "Fertilizer Recommendations for Turf."

Energy aid deadline Friday

Madison County EOC Friday will discontinue accepting applications for the 1981, Low Income Energy Assistance Program.

LEAP offers help with heating bills for low-income households. EOC will distribute approximately $737,247 to the residents of Madison County. This year EOC will be able to accept more applications due to the structure of the program.

The amount of individual grants will vary according to family size, income and other criteria.

Also verification of income for all income earning persons within the household such as W-2 forms, year-to-date check stub, etc. Without income verification, the payment of grant cannot be made until received. This is important to insure prompt payment.

Persons who believe their households may be eligible are encouraged to call our Energy hotline number 462-1157 weekdays from 8:30 to 5 for additional information before Friday.

Thieves ransack Venice dwelling

Diane Clay, 1029 Calhoun St., Venice, returned home last week to find every room in her house had been ransacked and jewelry and other items were missing. The burglars gained entry by breaking a glass pane in a storm door and forcing open an interior door. All rooms had been searched and some jewelry items were found scattered in a bedroom and on a couch.

Among the items stolen were a gold dinner ring with seven diamonds, no value listed, a man's gold watch, worth $250, a woman's gold watch with diamonds valued at $350, a white gold watch, $100, a television and radio, a carton of cigarettes, bottle of whiskey, several Kennedy half-dollars and currency.

Fall is the time for drying herbs

By CHRIS DOLL

Area Garden Adviser
Gardeners may enjoy herbs from the garden during the winter months if they are harvested and dried properly.

Proper drying is the key to high quality. The recent days of high humidity make the job more difficult, but it can be accomplished by proper care.

Herbs should be gathered at the proper stage of maturity. Collect stems approximately six inches long. After blossoms have been removed, wash the stems and leaves in cold, running water.

Shake off excess water and wrap in absorbent toweling. When the herbs are free of surface water, either bag-dry or tray-dry in a dark well-ventilated room. An attic is ideal, but the air temperature should not exceed 100 degrees F. Higher temperatures may cause loss of plant oils and flavor change.

For bag-drying, place eight to 12 stems in a brown paper bag, with the base of the stems exposed, and tie the bag loosely.

Place in the drying room until the leaves are brittle. Then shake the bag to free the leaves from the stems, or split the leaves in an airtight container away from light until needed.

In tray-drying, leafy stems are placed one layer deep in a tray and put into the dark, ventilated room. The herbs will need an occasional turning to insure uniform drying.

When the leaves are dry, separate from the stems and place in the airtight container away from light. The dried leaves can be crushed or perized with the hands prior to use or permanent storage. Keep from light and excess heat for best quality.

Criminal code change vetoed by governor

Governor James R. Thompson announced Friday he has vetoed legislation that would reduce legal protection now offered to teachers, park district personnel, public aid caseworkers, police officers, firefighters, prison officials, paramedics and bus drivers.

House Bill 318 would amend the Criminal Code to replace "harmful" with the phrase "caused bodily harm" in defining aggravated battery. It also changes "commit a battery" to "intentionally or knowingly commits a battery" as part of the elements constituting aggravated battery.

"To eliminate this protection now," Thompson said in his veto message, "when professionals in the law enforcement, firefighting, teaching and other public service fields are precious commodities, would be tantamount to sending them into the field without the support they must have to do their jobs for all of us."

Thompson also rejected House Bill 17 that would allow school districts to adjust their property tax levy by filing an amended certificate within 10 days of receipt of official notice of the multiplier.

"This legislation in conflict with the purpose and provisions of the 'Truth-in-Taxation Act,' which was recently signed into law," the Governor said in his veto message. "Local taxpayers deserve, and complete information on local property tax levies, uncomplicated by supplemental levies not subject to the disclosure provisions of the Truth-in-Taxation Act."

LAW SEPARATES LOAN, INSURANCE DECISIONS

A new state law prohibits banks from requiring that the borrower contract for additional services as a condition before issuing a loan. A bank making a mortgage loan cannot require the borrower to secure homeowner's insurance from a particular insurance agent or broker. The law also adds a section to the Illinois Banking Act which makes it against the law to disclose financial or insurance information on the borrower to any subsidiary or affiliate.

Coping with crab grass

The wet summer of 1981 has been good for lawn grasses. Unfortunately, that includes crab grass.

If you want to fight back against this invasion of your lawn, a Southern Illinois agronomist has outlined a program described as sure to finish off crab grass and other grassy weeds with a "one-two punch."

It requires two applications now of a commonly available chemical and the application of another chemical in the spring.

The chemical to apply now comes under two names—MSMA or DSMA. It often is listed as an ingredient of chemicals that are labeled as crab grass killers. Read the label to check for the presence of MSMA or DSMA, the agronomist advises.

"Apply either in two applications about 10 days apart," he says, "that will knock out existing crab grass and grassy weeds."

"To make that control permanent, you will have to make an early spring application of another chemical that will stop the germination of the crab grass seeds that already have been spread by crab grass plants this summer."

"The spring application should be with either a chemical called siduron or one called DCPA is marketed under the trade name Dacthal."

"If broadleaved weeds, such as buckhorn or dandelion, are the problem in your lawn, use a chemical called 2,4-D Dicamba. It works best when used in cool weather and weeds are actively growing. Be careful not to spray this chemical on bushes or trees."

Free meals offered at Child Center

The Tri-City Tabernacle Child Development Center today announced its policy for free and reduced price meals for children unable to pay the full price of meals under the Child Care Food Program.

They have adopted the United States Department of Agriculture Family Income Guidelines for free and reduced price meals, for determining eligibility. All children are treated the same regardless of ability to pay. In the operation of child nutrition programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, handicap, or national origin, according to Katherine Belmer, director.

Central Christian to retire mortgage

The congregation and pastor of Central Christian Church, 202 Johnson Road, are completing arrangements for a celebration of the mortgage retirement to be observed on Oct. 11 during the Sunday morning worship hour.

Former members and ministers are expected to participate as special guests and appropriate musical selections will be presented by the Sanctuary Choir.

In 1901, a meeting was held in a tent under the Merchant's Bridge in Venice, as the initial building of the denomination, and in 1902 the congregation began holding services in North Venice homes of the members.

The members also met in a school building in south Madison, Ill., the following year agreed to establish a definite place of worship in Rosenberg Hall, then located at 19th and State streets.

Quarters were later rented in Priest Hall and in 1908 the Netheringham Trustees donated a plot ground at 22nd and State streets, to the congregation to erect a new church building.

The edifice was constructed and dedicated in December of that year and the members met there for many years.

Rev. Gregg, now deceased, was called in 1920 to serve the church and six years later a new lot was purchased at 24th Street and Edison Avenue for the purpose of building a new and larger facility.

The 50th anniversary of the church was observed in October 1961 and in 1965 a new ground site on Johnson Road was purchased with groundbreaking taking place on Sept. 11. The church at the present address was dedicated on June 17, 1966.

offered to homeowners

Quad-City area taxpayers have until Oct. 15 to file a request with their local assessor or with the county for a reduction in the assessed value of their homes under Senate Bill 1790.

Assessment reductions of up to $5,000 to offset increases caused by reassessments and multipliers, are available to all homeowners who reside in the houses, duplexes, condominiums or apartment buildings of six units or less, if the owner resides in the building for which the reduction is requested.

As a public service, the Press-Record is supplying the attached form for taxpayers to fill out and return to their local tax assessors. The assessors then will notify the county treasurer to apply the reduction to the assessments when tax bills are prepared for collection next summer.

There is no income limitation on the assessment reduction program and all owner-occupied dwellings qualify, including those being purchased through contract for deed, loan assumption or life estate agreements.

Homeowners must file annually by Oct. 15 to qualify for the assessment reduction.

NON-EMERGENCY AMBULANCE SERVICE AVAILABLE

The superiority of man is based in his ability to reason. Lower life-forms have desire and appetites but they lack the reason that defines choice. Given the fact that man is free to have a choice, he alone is faced with the moral question of being good or evil. Much of contemporary thought aligns with Aristotle's. He suggested that a person always acts in order to get something and that the point of everything in the universe is to realize itself to the fullest. Thus, self-realization is the highest goal for which all else is done. Reason shares a man's mind with desires, feelings and appetites.

Man's desires are varied as man himself. This is one reason that the practicality of pre-arrangements of interment services has become requested so often. At MERCER, THOMAS AND SEDLACK MORTUARIES we are available to discuss all matters necessary to assist you in better understanding such services and in providing the means for you to choose the manner and methods of your preference. Let your choice be one based on knowledge and understanding and not emotion alone.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK:

Since man is imperfect for his design, he can never self-realize to a state of complacency. He would then degenerate until the cycle begins anew with new questions and new goals.

"Overfest '81, Bridging the Gap," has been selected as the theme for the three-day celebration to officially open the new 19th Street overpass Oct. 16, 17 and 18 at the overpass site.

Plans are underway for a soap box derby down one side of the overpass, a carnival with rides and booths, ethnic and American food, music and other offerings.

Groups interested in having booths at "Overfest '81" are being asked to contact David Nolan, administrative aide to Mayor Paul Schuler, at 422-6215 as soon as possible, since the time for organizing the festival is short.

Committees are being formed to help organize the event and persons who would be interested in serving on any of the committees also are urged to contact Nolan.

Proposal to bid for outside computer work rejected by GC

The Granite City city administration is strongly committed to using the city's two-year-old computer system to its fullest extent and not to contract out the city's computer work at this time, Mayor Paul Schuler strongly indicated during Tuesday night's city council meeting.

The mayor made his views clear during a heated exchange which followed a recommendation by Alderman Paul Ray Bowler, chairman of the council's finance committee, that the city seek bids on having private computer services do the city's payroll to see if such services could be bid out for less cost than to continue to pay three salaries, insurance costs and fringe benefits for the women who operate the computer.

Bowler pointed out that the city also is planning to hire a full-time certified public accountant for $30,000 a year, to help the city straighten out its books. He said only a part-time CPA may be needed if an outside firm does the computer work, and said he feels the idea should be explored.

Mayor Schuler strongly supported the city's workers and computer, saying that all of the city's payroll now is being done by the computer and training is now underway so the computer can soon be put into full operation to help keep records of all city purchasing, fund balances and other work.

Schuler said the idea of having an outside firm do the payroll was explored recently with First Granite City National Bank. "They found it would be rather difficult due to the large number of checkoffs in the city and the problems with the specifics the city would require," the mayor contended. "If we had a simple payroll, it could be handled," he added.

He contended that the city has seven or eight checkoffs (such as union dues and insurance premiums), which make it difficult for an outside firm to handle by computer.

Schuler noted that the city spent between $55,000 and $60,000 to purchase, set up and program the computer and has invested in training four employees, one of whom left to work for another firm after the city trained her.

"I would like to continue to put the computer into full effect on city offices and city job classifications," the mayor said.

He noted one woman now is almost fully trained in the computer's operation and is doing the payroll by computer. Another woman is "generally trained" on the ledger side of the computer and a third is partially trained.

Bowler said he sees no harm in checking the prices of outside firms to do the work and the mayor said it would cost money to prepare the specifications for the bidding. Bowler responded, "I'll type them up, free."

The mayor responded, "We don't even have the job classifications yet. If the committee would like to do that, fine."

He added, "It is difficult for a mayor and a city clerk when the council agreed two months ago to advertise for a CPA and then turn around and throw those plans out and advertise for bids from an outside firm. You have to have some direction in how to proceed and if you change your minds month by month, it is very difficult to decide how to proceed.

"Right now you've got a big mess in this (treasurer's) department, but you can't change horses in mid-stream. Any alderman who comes into city hall and wants to know what's going on knows it," the mayor said.

He said additional training is available for the three women who operate the computer and a meeting with representatives of the NCR computer firm has been arranged for Sept. 24 to determine the costs involved and what the employees might learn if they take the advanced training.

God can be trusted. He is no respecter of persons. He is the same to all who are upon his name. He does not change. The same yesterday, today, and forever. He can supply our every need. He can renew our strength, lift our burdens, give peace that passes understanding. Trust Him.

Chamber proposes angle parking around Civic Park

By GARY SCHNEIDER
of the Press-Record

A proposal by the Tri-Cities area Chamber of Commerce to cut away part of sidewalks and curbs around Civic Park to allow angle parking, rather than the current parallel parking, was received by the Granite City Council Tuesday night and was referred to the council's downtown committee, but not without a hint of resentment over former joint, Chamber-city projects which have not panned out.

The Downtown Development Committee of the Chamber suggested the change, which would increase downtown parking by nearly 30 spots, and made the recommendation in a letter read to the city council. The committee's chairman, Carl Baczewski, suggested that the city cut away the curbs, cut back the dirt on all three sides of the park and narrow the sidewalks in places to create angled parking along all three sides, on Niedringhaus, Delmar and 20th Street. A mailbox also may have to be moved, the letter said.

The lots thus created could be leased to the Chamber for $1 a year and the Chamber would agree to manage and maintain the lots, Baczewski suggested.

Alderman Sam Whitmer of the Second Ward expressed his displeasure with the proposal, saying, "I never heard what they (the Chamber) are going to do for downtown. We had a downtown mall set up, but the merchants beat that."

"We went in with the Chamber on a downtown parking lot, but the city ended up with it and has to pay the Trust Bank $430 a month."

"They never say, 'We're going to help.' Never. When it comes down to the money, I'm not for it," Whitmer stated.

Alderman Carl Kittel of the Third Ward said that the newest parking proposal is among many things which could be done to improve downtown Granite City and make it more attractive, but contended that whenever the Chamber of Commerce or the merchants are asked to participate financially, they will not.

"If the merchants want to get into tax increment financing, maybe, but they will have to give us a commitment," Kittel said.

Tax increment financing has been suggested as one way of improving the downtown area without great initial expense to the city. Under the plan, the city can "freeze" the assessed valuation on a certain redevelopment area and can issue bonds to make certain improvements, such as a mall, parking garage, modern or decorative street lights, new streets, gardens and other improvements.

Merchants would have to agree to make certain improvements and at least one major new business or office building would probably have to agree to locate here to make the bonds sellable.

At the end of the redevelopment, the assessed valuation of the area would rise to its new level, while the bonds would continue to receive taxes on the frozen assessment. The "taxes" program.

generated by the increased assessment would be used to repay the bonds, interest and program costs.

After all associated obligations are retired, within 20 years of the start of the program, the taxing districts would begin getting their fair share of the taxes levied against the higher assessments in the redeveloped area, according to consultant experts in the tax increment financing field.

David Nolan, administrative aide to Mayor Paul Schuler, said that the city has been trying for years to get a prime developer to agree to build a major office building or commercial store downtown which could be used as the cornerstone for a tax increment financing program to improve the downtown area, but has been unsuccessful, thus far.

Such a major development would assure that the assessment level in the redevelopment district would rise sufficiently to repay the bonds within the 20-year limit on the program.

Baczewski named to Madison police

Frank G. Baczewski, 27, of 1717 Elizabeth St., Madison, was appointed a probationary patrolman on the Madison police department Tuesday night by the Madison city council following the recommendation of Andrew Economy, president of the Madison Board of Fire and Police Commissioners.

Baczewski is single and lives with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. (Angeline) Baczewski. He attended St. Mary's elementary school and Granite City High School. He has attended Southern Illinois University Edwardsville for two years where he majored in Human Services.

Baczewski plans to finish his bachelor's degree at SIUE. He formerly worked for four years for the Madison County Sheriff's department as a correctional officer and in communications.

In February of this year Baczewski was hired as a Youth Services Coordinator for the MPD under a federal grant.

Baczewski said, "I have always wanted to be in law enforcement. I like working with and helping people and this is the job of a police officer."

A member of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Baczewski plays second base for the Illinois State, 1981

Class A Softball Champions, Waggoner Trucking, of Madison.

Baczewski finished first in the eligibility exams given by the police commissioners last month.

Madison Police Chief Donald Brick stated he felt Baczewski would make a fine officer and joins the Madison police with an law enforcement background.

Fund crisis created by Schoemehl, McNary may put them in driver's seat; bus bosses' feud created opening

Excerpts from comments by the two St. Louis newspapers on the proposed metropolitan area bus system takeover:

LEAVE THE MANAGING

TO-BI-STATE

St. Louis Post-Dispatch Sept. 5.—St. Louis Mayor Vincent Schoemehl and St. Louis County Executive Gene McNary, apparently have been swept away by their own rhetoric and claims they are serious about taking over operation of the Bi-State bus system if commissioners don't knuckle under to Schoemehl's demands to review the agency's table of organization.

The latest crisis in the bus system again has been precipitated by St. Louis and St. Louis County withholding transportation tax receipts that are supposed to go to Bi-State. It started in July when Schoemehl demanded to see and review the agency's table of organization within 10 days but was told it would not be available for three months.

Contemplating a seizure of the reins of the bus company, Schoemehl says, "We are prepared to bring in an entirely new (bus) system by Oct. 15. That is not in doubt about three hours. We just have to set up a corporation. Oh, really? It's that easy? Somehow the federal agency that oversees mass transit, the Urban Mass Transit Administration, doesn't share his enthusiasm for such a takeover."

A UMFTA spokesman says the agency would discourage any effort by the city and county to take over the system because it would set a bad precedent for other local governments and could lead to a fragmentation of bus systems across the country.

It is obvious Bi-State Transit has become the victim of too many politicians arbitrarily holding up transportation tax payments until various demands are met.

In the beginning there were some valid reasons for pressuring Bi-State, such as poor service, not enough routes, etc. But now it appears that Schoemehl, McNary and others want Bi-State commissioners and managers to jump when Schoemehl says "jump."

Schoemehl in his latest dictum has decreed that Bi-State is overstaffed. Envisioning himself as the new czar of Bi-State, Schoemehl says, "They are going to have to go through the budget bit by bit, just like we did in city government, and they're going to have to justify to me the need for each one of their employees."

Until his demands are met, Schoemehl says, he won't recommend that the city appropriate its Bi-State bus subsidy.

He says he is convinced that Bi-State has too many managers. Some St. Louis taxpayers think Mayor Schoemehl has too many assistants.

The county has lightened the squeeze with an ordinance that prevents it from making any payments to Bi-State on its $22 million a year bus subsidy until the city starts paying on its $13.2 million amount.

Thus, both the county and the city have withheld payments to Bi-State for July and August—about $4 million from the county and about $2 million from the city—since Schoemehl began issuing his edicts.

Members of the Madison County Mass Transit District board have indicated they will withhold tax payments until Bi-State sets up a personnel office and builds a garage there as part of a campaign to hire more Illinois residents.

Bi-State hasn't received any of the tax subsidies to which it is entitled for July or August from any of the areas it is serving. That is no way to support a bus system whose services are vital to the community.

Governing bodies certainly have the right to seek corrective action from Bi-State if services aren't adequate or if standards aren't being maintained.

But when they start talking about an instant takeover of the bus company, it is time to call a halt to the wrecking operation.

The practice of holding Bi-State hostage unless it agrees to politicians' demands should stop.

Bi-State has provided services to the city and St. Louis County, as well as Madison and St. Clair counties in Illinois, and it is entitled to receive the subsidies that are due. The money should be sent to Bi-State without any further delay or unreasonable demands. And leave the managing to Bi-State!

THE BUS COUP DETAIL

Sept. 10.—Comments by the Post-Dispatch's Evars Graham—St. Louis and St. Louis County's chief executive may come to regret the bus coup d'état they are trying to pull off.

So might the Bi-State Development Agency commissioners who agreed to surrender their bus service and maybe their whole agency to the politicians without a fight.

All the public has been told about the genesis of the local control scheme thus far is that McNary and Schoemehl cooked it up only last Thursday (Sept. 3) when they decided to starve Bi-State into submission by refusing to turn over to it the state subsidies they owe.

McNary had been practicing how to do that for years.

If Illinois Gov. James Thompson, for example, hasn't been led in on the preliminary planning, he must be wondering whether his constituents aren't getting the shaft, again, from Big Brother on the west bank of the Mississippi.

McNary and Schoemehl may have concluded Thompson is already so embroiled in the financial distress of the Chicago transit system that he will not have time or stomach for a similar fight in his state's second largest urban area.

One obvious consequence of Missouri control of Bi-State's buses, however, and particularly of the way it seems to have been engineered, is likely to be the shattering of whatever fragile hopes may have existed for an areawide approach to the grinding problems of the St. Louis area.

The same result could occur on this side of the river. The treaty between McNary and Schoemehl may lead to the achievement of McNary's long-sought goal of county dominance of the area's bus system, but at what cost?

Pending clarification of the details, it is clear just how much of a power grab by the mayor and the executive, contrary to, it virtually guaranteed, a confrontation with Schoemehl and McNary when it in effect installed two executive directors two years ago.

Naturally, they disagreed. And, naturally, the disagreement centered over the budget, specifically the number of management positions.

And, of course, if the county continues to divert sales tax money to balance its budget, to pay for roads and interest loans to the state, all of which has done to the tune of $16 million, the new transit agency will find itself in a bind.

Nope of this is to say that Bi-State is the enemy, but the long-term of a power grab by the mayor and the executive, contrary to, it virtually guaranteed, a confrontation with Schoemehl and McNary when it in effect installed two executive directors two years ago.

establishments—and by virtue of that—their own, so will be respected by the people here with their hands on the levers of power.

Almost from its beginning more than 30 years ago, Bi-State has been an outsider, ignored by the power structure even though—if properly understood—it could have been an important resource for regional economic development.

Perhaps the fact that Illinois commissioners have an equal voice with Missouri's gained acceptance in the heart of the agency's neglect.

The East Side has historically been the ugly stepchild of the area, and leaders on the Missouri side have resented its being given equal say in important economic decisions.

Whatever the explanation, Bi-State has gained acceptance in the heart of the agency's neglect.

But to the extent that the new transit agency is regarded as part of the establishment, it will be subject to political influence and the inefficiency, manipulation, waste and featherbedding that so often follow.

To a vastly greater extent, however, transit decisions and management organization are likely to be affected by aldermen or county councilmen who control the transit agency's purse.

And, of course, if the county continues to divert sales tax money to balance its budget, to pay for roads and interest loans to the state, all of which has done to the tune of $16 million, the new transit agency will find itself in a bind.

Commercial or residential? Madison Ave. residents to be asked their preference

By GARY SCHNEIDER

Failure of the Granite City Council to act Tuesday night on a proposed zoning ordinance for the city was seen by some realtors as a blessing, since it will give the realtors more time to try and prove that a majority of the residents of Madison Avenue between 24th Street and Namekook Road would prefer that their property be zoned for commercial use than remain residential, as is proposed in the new zoning ordinance.

Ray Kaegel, president of the Granite City Board of Realtors, attended Tuesday night's meeting of the council and later commented, "We were told that the zoning ordinance was to be the final thing on the agenda. (It was never brought up Tuesday night as the council became bogged down with a lengthy city sales tax ordinance. A separate story on the issue appears on today's front page.)

After Wednesday's meeting of the Board of Realtors, however, Kaegel said some realtors feel the extra time may be a blessing, since it will give volunteers an opportunity to canvass Madison Avenue, door-to-door, to ask residents to sign a petition stating that Madison Avenue whether they would prefer their properties to be zoned residential.

Kaegel, a member of the Granite City Planning Commission, has volunteered to represent the commission in such a canvass and several realtors volunteered their time at Wednesday's Board of Realtors meeting, Kaegel said.

"They are hoping that at least one representative of the city time may be a blessing, since it will give volunteers an opportunity to canvass Madison Avenue, door-to-door, to ask residents to sign a petition stating that Madison Avenue whether they would prefer their properties to be zoned residential."

Kaegel said that the majority of the residents on Madison Avenue want commercial zoning, the council might bend," Kaegel noted.

Kaegel said he gave the realtors a report on last Thursday's meeting of the Granite City Planning Commission at which the commission endorsed the new zoning ordinance.

At that time, the realtors' opinion was that the residents did not want it to be rezoned commercial. Keeping the present system where any property on Madison Avenue that is rezoned from residential to commercial must receive the approval of the city council in "a political football game."

It's a farce, he really is a farce, Krevokich contended.

Farmers to get tax refunds

By JUDY TAPLIN

Madison County farmers who were overcharged on their 1980 property tax bills are going to get their money back.

The county board decided Wednesday to refund the filing fee of $10 to farmers who had paid it.

Instead, new tax bills will go out to those farmers, reducing the second installment of taxes to reflect the overcharge.

The county board's action will eliminate the $10 filing fee required from farmers asking for certificates of error and will also eliminate the need to pay taxes under protest.

Based on its decision Wednesday, the county board is asking farmers to pay the first installment of their taxes. This installment is due on or before Sept. 30. They will then receive a new bill for the second installment.

"There have been things done to get zoning here in Granite City that are illegal. If it has been done in the future, it will be brought out," he charged. The allegation was refuted by officials present who said if there was evidence of wrongdoing, it should be brought out.

Plan Commission Member Fred Cunningham said that he has seen no evidence of wrongdoing in the zoning ordinance. The Plan Commission's recommendations for any gain and stated that in two years on the commission, he would again be on the council reversing a commission recommendation.

Krevokich said that if he sells a home in the $45,000 range or higher, he cannot and will not pay the high rental for downtown or shopping center space. Keeping them from opening businesses in their homes or in less expensive residential properties is stopping some from opening the businesses, he contended.

City Engineer Monroe Brewer contended that there is a type of housing shortage in the city. About 110 new residential lots have been developed in the city in the last two years and nearly every one of them has been purchased. Many homes costing $80,000 or more built on them. He said there are not enough homes on the market to satisfy the demand.

Lloyd Bailey, a 27-year-old resident of Madison Avenue, argued that Madison Avenue is primarily residential and should remain so. He said he did not want it to be rezoned commercial.

He said that of 213 pieces of property on Madison Avenue between 24th Street and Namekook Road, 176 are residential and 37 are commercial. Abutting lots on Grand Avenue and Iowa Street have been rezoned commercial, he said.

Kill new tax before it kills city

Only a person who has lost his common sense would pay the extra $100 for the same tax merchandise that's 10 minutes away at the lesser price.

Now that this council member has gone to Collinsville and obtained his new car, the results are that he has lost his common sense.

Granite City has not only failed to collect its new $100 tax increase, but has also been deprived of the $100 tax which it would have received under current tax laws.

The City of Collinsville has an unexpected $100 tax bonus in its treasury.

And the agency begins to think about the possibility of moving its business to an area where it can be more price-competitive.

Such a move would entail the loss of $250,000 in sales tax revenues, of which the city gets twenty percent, the loss of a fairly nice-sized payroll, the loss of federal and state income tax revenues, and the deterioration of Granite City's property tax base.

Is this the answer to the city's money problems? Of course not! Let's kill this city tax increase before it kills the city.

Warrior kickers 'corner' Maroons, 4-1

GRANITE CITY — Funny thing, this game soccer. A team dominates another for four quarters. Completely. Outshoots them something ridiculous. Yet, the score doesn't reflect just how one-sided it was.

Take Granite City South's 4-1 victory over, Belleville West at The Gauntlet. The defending state champion Warriors outshot the Maroons 38-3. They had a phenomenal 27-0 edge in corner kicks. No typographical error. That was 27-0.

"They just took our game away from us," said Belleville West coach Gary Carr, whose team slipped to 1-3 with the loss. "Granite City just played a super game tonight."

As one-sided as it was, time was for a while in the first half that it was still anybody's game. Despite outshooting the Maroons 10-1 in the first quarter, West goalie Gary Lovelle made one diving save after another.

But South's problem with the West goalie was taken care of by the Warriors' first goal. Lovelle stopped a point-blank shot by South's Richie

"We started talking more in the second half," said South coach Gene Baker. "We've had trouble with people not communicating out on the field. But this was our best effort in that respect. Especially the second half."

The most picturesque goal of the evening came with 2:10 remaining in the third quarter. It was scored by Timmy O'Toole, the senior forward who transferred to South from St. Louis powerhouse Rosary High. "This was Timmy's best game," said Baker. "He's getting more into the flow of things."

O'Toole started as striker for Rosary's last two years and was a part of that team's 1979 Missouri state championship squad. "I really like playing over here (Illinois)," he said. "Coach Baker's the best coach around. And we're really a close-knit team."

South's right-hand man

Bunting enjoys his role

By PETE HAYES

GRANITE CITY — The spot Mel Bunting finds himself in with Granite City South's soccer program was created by Coach Gene Baker. But Bunting doesn't mind being Baker's assistant. After all, he's been in on five straight state championship squads.

"How could I complain?" said Bunting. "I've had the opportunity to work with the best soccer coach around."

Bunting was new to the game of soccer when tabbed as the South assistant when Baker arrived at the school as head coach in 1973. "I'll be the first to admit I didn't have much of a background in soccer," he said. "But Gene asked me if I'd do it."

"I went to a soccer college, Eastern Illinois, but on a football scholarship. I was around it some in the Army, but just on an intramural basis."

But Bunting has put away a lot of soccer knowledge since that time. "Gene and I must have seen thousands of soccer games since then," he said. "Gene's a good teacher."

Bunting, who serves as head coach for the junior varsity team, of course works hand in hand with Baker. "It's all one unit," he said. "We work it all together in practice."

"He (Baker) always makes me feel a part of the varsity unit too," he said. "I have no qualms about coaching on the sidelines in the varsity games, too."

How did Bunting feel when he first stepped into the job at South? "Nervous," he said. "But having an athletic background helps. The athletic anticipation is the same no matter what sport it is."

"I guess I had to get used to the tactics of soccer more than anything," said Bunting. "But by being around it and through Gene's help, I feel I can hold my own with a lot of the coaches around the area."

In fact, Bunting said he'd have no doubts about taking a head coaching job if the right situation developed. "I'm not looking to leave and I don't want to leave," he said. "But I think I could handle just about any coaching job around. I've been around it more than most of the head coaches in the area."

Bunting is a head coach in his own right. He is the head man in charge of the South track and field team. "I love it," he said. "It's a lot of work, but it's worth it."

Bunting has no favorites when talking about the jayvee players he's coached who have gone on to varsity greatness. "Of course I never coached David Fernandez or Mark Goldschmidt. They stayed on the varsity from their freshman years. But I guess Charlie Bennington and Marc Mason stand out in my mind. Charlie never played striker until he played for me. His senior year, he scored 30 goals and led the state in scoring. Mason was one of the best goalies we've ever had. He started out as a student manager. You find talent in all areas."

What about varsity teams at South? Does he have a favorite? "No favorite. I guess the 1978 team was... but the '77 team had a little bit of everything. But 1978..." He shook his head. They were all good. And he had a part in each one.

North reserves give soccer lesson to Triad

ST. JACOB — Steve Garland listened intently as Granite City North soccer coach Bob Kehoe spoke. The sun was setting over the confetti that staid by the Triad soccer field. Kehoe was giving Garland a mini soccer lesson on the heels of North's 3-0 home victory over Triad, Tuesday.

Garland had asked Kehoe what the Knight needed to work on. Kehoe told him, "I'll just take time," Kehoe said. "Lots of time."

North, annually one of the top prep soccer teams in the state, didn't break a sweat in dispensing of the Knights, who are in their first year of varsity competition. But nonetheless, Kehoe was impressed. "I'm glad to see what you're doing here," he told Garland, who wrestled but never played soccer at Granite City South as a prepster. "You've got some fast players and they have enthusiasm. That's important in building a program."

The Steelers ran their record to 3-0-1 with the victory. Its other victories were over Parkway North and Belleville Althoff. The tie was a 0-0 double-overtime affair last week with five-time defending state champion Granite City South.

"Games like this always worry me," said Kehoe. "You come into a game and outman the other team easily on paper. But kids have a way of reacting funny to situations like that."

"I remember a few years ago we played at Alton on paper they didn't belong on the same field with us. But we got a little cocky and they beat us 2-1."

Kehoe didn't have to worry about such things against Triad. Even though the peppy Knights kept the score down to respectability.

North's regular starters played sparingly, not seeing action until the second quarter. But Kehoe said he still used them more than he thought he'd have to. "We've been having a communication problem out on the field the last couple of games," he said. "In the first half, I put the regulars in and still didn't see much improvement."

The pressure that a tire can safely hold, usually referred to as the tire's maximum pressure, depends not only on its size but also on the strength and resilience of its carcass. Check the sidewall to find the tire's maximum safe pressure. The manufacturer stamps the figure and the initials PSI (for pounds per square inch) on every tire. Maximum safe pressure means exactly that. It is the highest level to which the tire can be safely inflated. Proper inflation also helps to assure maximum tread wear.

When your tires are in top condition your car will run smoother and if you are on a highway you can rest assured that there will be little chance of a blow-out. Located at 1820 Vandalia Avenue in Collinsville, BIG 4 CHEVROLET COMPANY will be glad to check your car and if a new car may be the answer our sales department will be glad to help you. Call us Monday thru Friday 7-6 at 345-5444 where you will get "One Great Team Behind Your Car."

AUTO TIP

In use on a specific car model and weight load, a tire may perform best at a pressure less than the maximum figure on the sidewall.

Cougars to take on Mustangs

EDWARDSVILLE — The soccer Cougars of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville will put their 3-1 record on the line Friday night as they battle archrival

Southern Methodist University in the first round of the prestigious Cougar Invitational Tournament at SIUE. A scheduled 8 p.m. match, the long-awaited rematch between the Cougars and the Mustangs, will be the second contest of the evening. Kansas City's Rockhurst College, an NAIA power, will take on nationally-ranked Cleveland State University in opening round action Friday at 8 p.m. The Cougars' last year led the Mustangs, 1-1, after two overtime periods

South harriers strong

By PETE HAYES

GRANITE CITY — Dick Harmon watched as the 40 youngsters limbered up for their afternoon practice. "After they exercise, they'll run about three or four miles," he said. "We want to take it easy today since we've got a meet tomorrow."

Harmon, the Granite City South cross country coach, is in an enviable position. He has four (two male, two female) of the top runners in the area returning to his squad and has the largest turnout ever for the sport. "We've built some enthusiasm for cross country here," said assistant coach Charlotte Charbonier. "It's like soccer with its state champions."

"If you're a winner, people become more interested." South has been a winner the past three seasons, winning the Gateway East Conference championship and sending runners to state each season. The Warrior harriers are the only cross country champions the GEC has ever had. But they won't win it this season.

Cahokia has dropped cross country from its list of extracurricular sports. Since Belleville Althoff doesn't offer it either, that leaves only Granite City South, Granite City North and Kickers — (Continued from Page 21) all right now," he said. "It's looser. It didn't bother me too much tonight."

South's fourth goal of the game came at the 72:59 mark in the fourth quarter. Jim Kelehan took pass from Tim Paz and boomed it into the far right corner of the net from about 20 yards out.

Triad — (Continued from Page 21) and Tim Dean are out with injuries sustained in the tie with South. Dean, who was hit in the right eye with the ball, has been released from Oliver C. Anderson Hospital but will still be out of action about two weeks. Harrington, who suffered an ankle injury, could return to the lineup Friday against McCluer North.

North got on the board with a goal by David Shiekh 14 minutes into the first quarter. He took a feed pass from teammate Ron Rowden and booted the ball in along Edwardsville as conference schools with cross country teams. Not enough.

"If there was a conference meet this season, we'd win it," said Harmon matter-of-factly. He sounds confident. He is.

South returns two of the better runners in the area in David McLean and Steve McQuade. "McLean is our leader right now," said Harmon. "He's one of the best in the area. And by the middle part of the season, McQuade should be right up there with him."

"But we're looking for good depth," said Harmon. "Steve DuMont and Ron Brown have to get up there with the other two to give us better depth. I think they will."

"Depth is what wins meets. You can have one or two good runners, but if you don't get down finishes up and down the lineup, you're not going to win."

Harmon said his team is a little behind where it should be at this point of the season. "The teachers' contract problems set us back some," he said. "But we've had some runners who have worked hard all summer on their running."

Three of those runners were McLean, McQuade and Mary Bisch, one of the best female runners in the area. "We've got probably the strongest girls team around," said Harmon. "I can't think of any better." To prove the point, Bisch, who along with McQuade and McLean ran over 300 miles over the summer, finished third in the girls division at last week's Granite North Invitational. "A girl from Springfield and one from Missouri beat her. Nobody from this area touched her."

That made it 4-0. It could just have easily been 12-0. West scored its lone goal on South's backup goalie Bryan Willis, who came into the game for starter Joe LeMaster midway in the fourth quarter. West's Johnny Suhurt scored after Willis misplayed an easy chip shot near the edge of the penalty area.

The Steeler's second goal came off the foot of Denny Nolan at the 11:37 mark of the second quarter. He scored off an assist from Greg Beeler.

North's third goal was scored by Bryan Levin at the 13:04 mark of the third quarter after an assist from Eric Maas.

Pairings out for Tournament of Champs

GRANITE CITY — The pairings have been released for the first-ever Granite City South Soccer Tournament of Champions, which will be held Oct. 8-10 at The South Gauntlet.

The round-robin affair will feature Vianney High, the defending Missouri state champion, Evansville Reitz, the two-time defending Indiana state champion, River View Gardens, the defending Missouri North District champ and Granite South, the five-time defending Illinois state champion.

On Thursday, Oct. 8, Vianney will meet Reitz at 6 p.m. and River View will play South at 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 9, Vianney will play River View at 4 p.m. and South will face Reitz at 6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 10, Reitz will face River View Gardens at 6 p.m. and South will face Vianney at 8 p.m.

The team that emerges from the three-game format with the best win-loss record will be named the champion, and automatically receive a berth in next year's tournament. If two or more teams are tied with the best records, the tournament champion will be determined on a points system with three points being awarded for a victory, two points awarded for a sudden death penalty shot victory and one point for a sudden death penalty loss. If that method has not determined a champion, the team scoring the tied number of goals will be named champion. If that is tied, there will be co-champions.

"I'm very excited about this tournament," said South head coach Gene Baker. "It's the first real chance to show that Illinois soccer is first-class."

"I think a tournament like this will go a long way for bettering soccer in the state. Maybe in the future we'll have some northern Illinois teams in. I think the 'Tournament of Champions' concept is unique."

The tournament champion will be awarded a traveling trophy following the last game of the tournament. Each traveling trophy will be retired when a school has won it twice. A tournament committee will pick a Most Valuable Back, a Most Valuable Forward and Most Valuable Player for the tournament.

Third annual Stadium Run set

ST. LOUIS — More than 3,000 runners are expected to compete in the third annual Natural Light Stadium Run on Sunday, Sept. 27. The run will conclude with runners crossing the finish line on the playing field of Busch Memorial Stadium prior to the St. Louis Cardinals-Pittsburgh Pirates baseball game.

The 10,000-meter, 6.2-mile run through the streets of downtown St. Louis will start at 11:30 a.m. near Busch Memorial Stadium.

The Stadium Run is being sponsored by Natural Light beer, the Cardinals and the St. Louis Track Club. Proceeds from the race will be donated to the Bethesda Eye Institute in St. Louis.

The entry deadline is Friday, Sept. 18, which race director Tom Eckelman of the St. Louis Track Club explained is necessary so that runners' packets can be mailed to entrants prior to the September 27 run.

Harmon thinks O'Fallon, Belleville East, Belleville West and East St. Louis are the teams to beat in the area. "They're good," he said. "But we're not far behind them."

Each runner in the run will receive a coupon good for one free general admission ticket or one-half off the price of any reserved seat for the Cardinals game that day, a Stadium Run T-shirt, running number.

Boxing starting

GRANITE CITY — The Mexican Honorary Commission boxing team has begun its practice sessions for the fall season. The MHC boxers, who are entering their third season of competition, practice Monday through Thursday at the Lincoln Place Community Center from 7 to 9 p.m.

Boys age 8 and over who are interested in boxing may contact coach Mercie

Mendoza for further information at 876-3509.

According to Mendoza, the MHC boxers will host several of their own fight cards this season perhaps beginning in early December. In addition, they will be fighting on the regular monthly cards at the Plantation Dinner Theater and Bell-Clair Fairgrounds in Belleville. Plantation boxing will begin Oct. 2 and Bell-Clair cards will begin Oct. 20.

James at ISU

BLOOMINGTON — Sophomore David James of Granite City is tied for the lead for most goals scored this season on the Illinois

State University soccer team.

James, who played at Granite City South and helped lead the Warriors to the 1979 state championship, has four goals, all scored in last Friday's 5-5 drubbing of Purdue.

James is tied with Tony Oghafua of Nigeria for most goals. Illinois State career scoring leader Frank Speth of Deerfield has two goals thus far in the season.

Refs needed

GRANITE CITY — The Granite City Park District is currently taking applications for soccer referees for the 1981 women's soccer program. Play will begin Sept. 27 at Wilson Park. Interested individuals should have a solid knowledge of the soccer rules. Those wanting further information may contact the park office at 877-3059.

'Workfare' may reduce welfare abuse in state

Governor James R. Thompson signed two pieces of legislation Monday allowing the state's "Workfare" program to go into operation in Chicago while cracking down on welfare cheats.

"These measures will help us assure that it is those who truly need this assistance who are the recipients," the governor said.

"These bills will help us find work for those who want to work, and will remove from the welfare rolls those who are trying to rip off the system."

The welfare cheat bill forbids public assistance from being granted to anyone found guilty of violating the Public Aid Code two or more times.

Senate Bill 999 also provides that public aid employees who wilfully fail to report fraudulent situations are subject to appropriate disciplinary action. It also toughens prison sentences for public aid fraud.

The other measure approved in a bill-signing ceremony expands and strengthens existing statutes that require able-bodied general assistance recipients to actively search for work.

If there are no jobs available through a recipient's own search, then a job is to be provided through the Workfare program.

Refusal to take a Workfare job would result in the recipient being taken off the welfare rolls.

"The state's pilot project with Workfare so far this year has been impressive," Thompson said.

"More than 3,000 general assistance recipients have left the welfare rolls in the pilot program area during that time, and the state has saved thousands of dollars when we need to pinch every penny possible."

By signing this bill, we will allow the program to be expanded to a citywide basis—giving people an opportunity to work while at the same time saving the state millions of dollars that can be better used in other critical areas."

Thompson said documentation has shown that the program is working well. He said general assistance recipients under the Workfare program are leaving the assistance rolls 11 to 13 percent sooner than employable persons who are not in the Job Search-Workfare program.

The theory is that those who dislike the assigned work are prodded to try harder to find regular jobs. "At this rate," Thompson said, "the Department of Public Aid expects to reduce planned general assistance payments more than $3 million in the current fiscal year."

Senate Bill 948 will allow the program to be established citywide next month. Downstate Workfare programs are directed by local governments.

Specifically, the bill: —Gives the department discretion to decide which program groups will fall under the Workfare program, including aid to families with dependent children, food stamp recipients and general assistance.

—Allows the Department of Public Aid to restructure the general assistance cash grant system in Chicago. Employable recipients are to receive a uniform level grant while non-employable persons are to get grants based on individual circumstances. This new structure is to go into effect in January 1982.

Persons who refuse to participate in the Job Search-Workfare program can also be denied eligibility for further assistance for up to 90 days.

Fishing fee will increase

Governor James R. Thompson has signed a bill increasing the fee for fishing licenses, with the new revenue going toward support of the state's fish hatchery system.

"This measure, even though it involves a fee increase, is supported by major sport fishing groups across the state because it will improve the stocks of fish in our state's water system," Thompson said. Under House Bill 197, resident sport fishing licenses will increase from $5 to $7 while non-resident licenses will be hiked from $6 to $12. The combined hunting and fishing license will be increased from $11 to $13.

The fee increase on April 1, 1982, are expected to generate about $1.5 million, with that money to be used for operating and maintenance expenses of the new fish hatchery system.

The bill, which received overwhelming legislative support, also creates a distinction between wholesale and retail minnow dealers, establishing a $25 license fee for wholesale dealers and $5 for retail minnow dealers.

In addition, it allows commercial mussel fishermen to use scuba diving gear to harvest mussels.

INDECENCY CHARGED
Jeffrey A. Bringer, 19, of 2610 Grand Ave. was charged with public decency after a police investigation of an incident in which a man exposed himself to a 20-year-old Granite City woman on 27th Street near Cleveland Boulevard last week. The arrest took place near his home a few minutes later. He was freed at 8:30 p.m. on $102 bail pending a hearing.

Allege man is disorderly

Carl Cline Jr., 36, of 2611 Marshall Ave. was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct at 1:45 a.m. Saturday, following an incident in the parking area outside Eddie's Lounge, 2200 Nanticoke Road, at 1:45 a.m. Saturday.

Cline allegedly refused to get in his car and leave the lot when told by officers to do so or be arrested. He was released later in payment of a $85 cash bond.

Apple picking, hayride among offerings for seniors in GC

Senior citizens in Granite City Township may remain busy this fall as three events are being announced for this month, strictly for seniors.

Elder residents are being invited to participate free in the township's annual apple picking and picnic Friday, Sept. 25, according to Township Supervisor Nelson Hagnauer. Buses will leave the township building at 10 a.m. for Pere Marquette State Park near Grafton for a picnic. Participants are urged to bring a sack lunch.

Then the group will continue Eckert's Orchards in Grafton to pick apples. The orchard is out of Jonathan apples, for the season, however. All other types are available.

Seniors requiring transportation from their homes to the township building for the apple picking event can arrange home pick ups by calling Hagnauer's office, 877-8304, before 12:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 23.

Seniors also are being invited to the township's annual weiner roast and hayride Tuesday, Sept. 29, at 6 p.m. in the new pavilion at Wilson Park. The event is free.

Dancing to a live band also has been arranged. All Granite City seniors are welcome, Hagnauer said. Those needing transportation from their homes should arrange rides in advance, he added.

Free exercise classes for seniors are once again being offered each Tuesday in the township building, 21st Street and Delmar Avenue, beginning at 10 a.m. The exercise classes are taught by Janet Wilson.

Walker, a 1976 graduate of Madison High School, is scheduled for enlistment in the regular Air Force on Dec. 30. Upon graduation from six-week basic training, he is scheduled to receive technical training in the aircraft maintenance field.

The co-chairmen of the Labor Day Parade said that they and the delegates wish to thank all organizations, groups and companies which participated in this year's event and helped make it a success.

2nd Labor Day parade in 1982

Edward Reiske, president of the Tri-Cities Trades and Labor Council, and Bob Means, subdistrict director of United Steelworkers of America, jointly announced this week that due to the success of the Labor Day parade, it will become a tradition in the area.

They said preparations already are underway for next year's parade, which Reiske said should be even bigger and better than the 1981 parade.

The co-chairmen of the Labor Day Parade said that they and the delegates wish to thank all organizations, groups and companies which participated in this year's event and helped make it a success.

"Next year we are going to make it the best one that ever was," Reiske predicted.

Plank Road the core of development in Old Six Mile

Creation of the Old Six Mile Historical Society locally has caused a renewed interest in the history of the Quad-City area and its surroundings.

Among the goals of the club are gathering historical items and documents and attempting to make the public more aware of the part this area played in the development of the United States. Eventually, the group hopes to found a museum in the Quad-City area.

Reflecting on the creation of the National Road through the Quad-Cities is the following submitted by Mrs. Georgia Engleke, an officer of the Old Six Mile Historical Society.

In 1800, when the Gillhams, Judys and Kirkpatrick were attracted to the Land of Goshen in the American Bottoms, there wasn't even the rudest kind of wagon road.

They found only narrow footpaths through the forests made by the Indians or trails across the prairies made by the buffalo and deer.

In 1806, Congress voted money to build a road to the west. The government was selling public lands and was taking in large sums of money. Congress decided to use some of this money to build a system of roads which would bind the country together.

The construction of the National Road, as it was called because it was built by the National government, did not begin until 1811. The section from Cumberland in Maryland to Wheeling, W.Va., was begun, but further construction was delayed because of the War of 1812. The war proved that roads were needed so the work resumed in 1814. Soon the road was open to a large number of emigrants and wagons carrying large loads of freight.

Congress planned to build the road as far as the Mississippi River and then to Jefferson City in Missouri. Building of the road into Ohio, Indiana and Illinois was delayed until 1825 because some thought that the project was an invasion of States' Rights by the federal government.

The road finally reached Vandalia, then the capital of Illinois, by 1840. Work on it stopped when a dispute arose whether it should cross the Mississippi River at Alton or St. Louis.

But a road to St. Louis was needed. After a rain, the mud was so deep on a dirt road that wagons and coaches would be mired in the roadbed.

Then the Federal government turned the road over to the State of Illinois, which erected toll gates to obtain money for repairs and to try to complete the road, but the state had very little money.

Finally, a group of men got together and formed a company for building roads. Crushed stone piled a foot deep was used to build the road in the east. Stone bridges were built across the rivers. Illinois had no stone and gravel to build roads, but there were forests which could supply logs, so these road builders invented a plank road, which became a part of the National Road.

They split 12-foot logs and laid them face up to make an even surface. Then heavy logs were laid along the edges to hold down the planks.

To pay for building the road, the companies put up toll gates across the road every 10 miles. When travelers came to the gates, they would have to pay a fee. A coach paid 20 cents, a wagon 10 cents, a horse and rider five cents, a cow one cent and a hog five cents.

Then, the gatekeeper would open the gate so they could go on. Heavy freight was moved in huge Conestoga wagons. The wheels and tongues of the wagons were painted blue and the bodies of the wagons were painted red. The wagons curved upward at each end like a boat and had a canvas top.

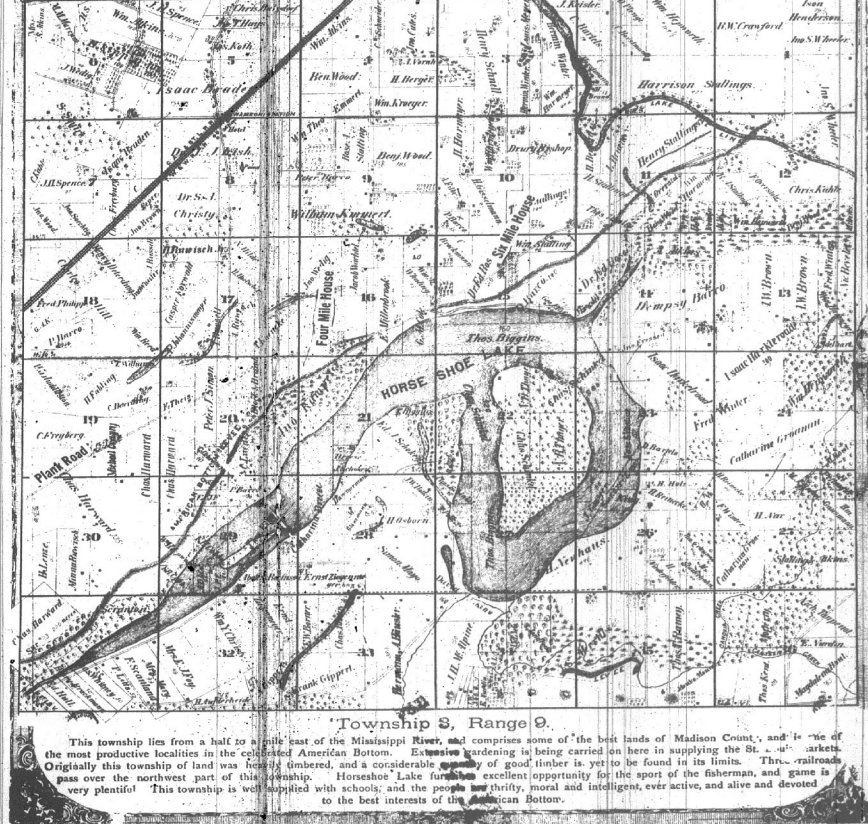

Families traveled in a canvas-covered wagon called a prairie schooner. The schooners were made watertight, so that they could be floated across the streams. Inside the wagons would be a furniture, small implements, animals and provisions.

At night, after cooking their meals along the side of the road, the families would sleep in the wagon.

Ox teams were used in bringing produce to market, while cattle and hogs were driven on the hoof.

As early as 1820, the first stagecoach traveled to the east side of the Mississippi River. These coaches were drawn by four or six horses. The body of the coach rested on two leather braces which let it rock back and forth. This made pulling the load easier for the horses.

Leather covers were fastened down in bad weather. Baggage was carried on top of the coach.

At night, travelers would stop at hotels and taverns along the way. At each stop, there was a barn with a blacksmith who fed and cared for the horses. After buying a hot meal, passengers would pay 25 to 50 cents for a night's lodging.

The route of the National Road, which had been constructed as far as Vandalia, had been surveyed through Troy and terminated on the Mississippi River at Old Six Mile (called Venice after 1841).

Over the route passed a daily line of stages running between St. Louis and Terre Haute, Ind. The stages going east left St. Louis in the morning crossed Old Six Mile and reached Troy during the forenoon.

Horses were changed at Troy after leaving St. Louis. Coaches and stagecoaches passed through Troy after dark, so stagecoaches made overnight stops at Stallings Road House, Six Mile House, Four Mile House or the Western Hotel, all located in Old Six Mile.

Wagons stopped with large herds of cattle and hogs at Henry Stallings Road House. In nearby fields were large pens in which a thousand cows and a thousand hogs could be kept.

The next day, the animals were driven to Venice and transferred across the river to St. Louis.

The Six Mile House was six miles east of the Mississippi River. This was a stagecoach stop in 1832. Two large bedrooms on the second floor accommodated travelers. The men slept in one bedroom, the women in the other.

Downtown was a large tavern and restaurant room on one side and family quarters on the other.

There was a well-built stone cellar under the house equipped with a wine cellar. Nearby were a horse barn and a blacksmith shop which supplied the trade with horses.

A post office was established at the Six Mile House in 1837.

The Four Mile House was another gathering place for drivers and travelers. A full meal cost 25 cents in this hotel.

A LOOK BACK. This map is from an undated historical document which shows the location of the Plank Road as a hollow double line starting in section 30 at the bottom left and crossing to the northeast above Horseshoe Lake. The location of several of the stage houses has been marked on the map. The caption at the bottom is from the original document, which described the people here as "thrifty, moral and intelligent."

The Western was a large frame hotel near the Mississippi River. It had private rooms and a large restaurant. Another post office was established in this hotel in 1837.

The National Road terminated at the Kerr Ferry landing (1836) on the banks of the mile-wide Mississippi, where it met the ferry boat called Brooklyn. The Plank Road was 100 feet wide in this area and was called, "The National Way."

There were two lively stables, three general stores, two blacksmith shops and a hotel.

The National Way became a large trading center where people would stop before boarding the Kerr Ferry to take them to St. Louis.

All went well with the National Way until 1851, when high waters swept it away forever. The importance of the National Road declined after the 1850s with the coming of the railroad.

Editor's Note
Among the sources of information for Mrs. Engleke's article was Ralph Stallings of Oklahoma City, Okla. His great-grandfather, Lockhart Stallings, was a contractor who built bridges and stage stop buildings, as well as being a builder of the Plank Road in Illinois.

Jun resigns from housing authority

Thomas Jun of Alton has resigned from the Madison County Housing Authority board.

Jun, who has been on the board about three years, has contract problems and is no longer supposed to drive at night, according to M. Joseph Hill, board chairman.

Jun's resignation leaves two vacancies on the five-person board. James May of Edwardsville resigned last spring.

The three remaining members are Reese Hoskins of Collinsville, Paul Bergel of Madison and Richard Hunter of Glen Carbon.

Hunter said at last week's board meeting that he had no appointments who he declined to name, have been made by Nelson Hagnauer, county board chairman.

Those appointments must be approved by the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs.

In other business, the board: Approved a legal services contract with Hill. The contract provides for a $550 per month retainer and a scale of charges for work on eviction and collection proceedings.

Hill is to be paid additional compensation determined on the release of $2.5 million in Reginald Transportation Authority sales tax receipts as the state continues its accelerated payments to keep the transit system running.

The governor said the RTA will not be able to represent the estimated October payment and $2,495,525 due it for September.

This is the first month the speed-up of payments had been in effect. In May, the governor ordered the monthly RTA payments to be advanced a month to aid the RTA during its cash crisis.

The transit authority receives an advance payment based on estimates of the amount due it for the next month. Then, when the regular payment time comes, it receives a second check for the difference between the estimated amount already advanced to it and the actual amount due.

The payments represent RTA sales tax collections in the six-county metropolitan area.

Proclaim cystic fibrosis week

Brady Twente, a 6-year-old from East Alton is living the normal life of any other active 6-year-old. He loves to bicycle around his neighborhood and excels on the Bethalto Boys Club Soccer Team and prides himself on being the fastest runner in his class.

There's one thing that Brady has that his classmates don't... Cystic Fibrosis.

As a result of early diagnosis, Brady Twente is experiencing a much healthier life. And the prospects for the future are good.

It is for this reason that Illinois Governor James Thompson has joined President Reagan and Congress in declaring Sept. 20-26 as National Cystic Fibrosis Week - to increase public recognition and awareness of this disease that ranks as the country's most common genetic killer of children and young adults.

"This special observance of National Cystic Fibrosis Week," said Richard Baalman, president of the Gateway Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, "provides an opportunity to not only encourage broader public understanding of cystic fibrosis, but to also pay tribute to the thousands of young people in the country who suffer from this debilitating and disabling disease."

According to Baalman, cystic fibrosis is an inherited and incurable disease in which a thick, glue-like mucus clogs the lungs and digestive system. As a result, many cystic fibrosis patients suffer from severe breathing problems as well as malnutrition.

Approximately 1 out of every 20 people carry the gene that causes cystic fibrosis; a child conceived by parents who each carry the gene has a 25 percent chance of inheriting the disease.

Despite the frequency - Cystic fibrosis occurs in one out of every 1,600 births - many cases remain undetected because parents are unfamiliar with the disease or its symptoms.

"I urge all citizens of Southern Illinois to join me in the battle to conquer cystic fibrosis," said Baalman. "Through our efforts, and those of many other volunteers across the nation who are actively taking the cystic fibrosis message to the public during National CF Week, more children like Brady Twente will be given a chance to lead a longer and fuller life."

To increase public recognition of cystic fibrosis, every promotional avenue and resource will be tapped during National Cystic Fibrosis Week by the Foundation's 75 Chapters across the country to mount a full-scale public education campaign. Locally, the Gateway Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation will help bring cystic fibrosis to the public's attention and raise much-needed funds for research through activities like tag days and The Door-To-Door Campaign.

Aviols dog bit strikes building

Jerry F. Stewart, 28, of 207 Sunny Shores, was injured during the weekend when he tried to avoid hitting a dog with his car and lost control of the vehicle, which left the roadway and struck a fence and brick building belonging to Illinois Power Co. at 22nd and Adams streets.

He was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center for treatment of a laceration to the forehead and abrasions. He had X-rays made and later was released.

Prisoners assigned to park work

Illinois Department of Corrections a Director Michael P. Lane has announced the beginning of a new public works program which places residents of community correctional centers in jobs with state and local governmental agencies.

Initially, the new program will provide jobs for more than 50 correctional center residents in over a dozen state parks and conservation areas throughout the state. The Department of Corrections will provide the work force and the Department of Conservation will supply the necessary materials, tools and supervision.

Four East St. Louis inmates are working at the Cahokia Mounds Historic Site and five prisoners at Giant City State Park.

The program is expected to expand to benefit other governmental agencies on the state, county, township and municipal levels as well as not-for-profit corporations.

Such inmates are paid $55 a month (21 work days), rising to $75 after three months.

"The aim of the new project is to develop positive work habits and a consistent work record which residents of community correctional centers can use in gaining later employment with private businesses," Lane said.

"The department's standard practice has been to find jobs with private firms for correctional center residents."

"However, the paucity of jobs in the private sector—combined with the minimal job skills of many of the residents—makes it difficult for them to secure employment with private businesses in some areas."

"Lane pointed out that residents of the 12 community correctional centers operated by the Department of Corrections are in the last eight months of their sentences."

"They must also have demonstrated an attitude of rehabilitation best served in a work release setting, where residents are employed in or near their home communities but live in the controlled setting of a correctional center."

NEW LAW TO FOSTER NATURE PRESERVES

Governor James R. Thompson last week announced he has signed legislation that reduces the assessed value of nature preserves to $1 per acre, to encourage the dedication of private land as natural preservation areas.

In order to qualify, land must be formally dedicated as a nature preserve, retain a degree of its primeval character, or have unusual plant species. The Department of Conservation must also be satisfied that the land will be used in a manner consistent with natural preservation.

State acts to eliminate overcrowding in prisons

Governor James R. Thompson has announced the start of 11 capital projects in the ongoing program to ease overcrowding in state prisons and upgrade Department of Corrections facilities, statewide. Included are two projects that will add 950 prison beds to the state's correctional system.

Architectural and engineering firms were selected by the Illinois Capital Development Board, Thompson said, for project planning and design work involving one new and seven existing correctional centers.

Plans for a new medium security facility in Vienna to house 750 residents will be developed by Phillips Swager & Associates, Inc. of Peoria. It will be similar in concept to the Graham (Hillsboro) and Centralia Correctional Centers and located on state-owned property adjacent to the present Vienna facility.

The Frankfort firm of Turner-Witt & Associates, Inc. was chosen to plan units to house an additional 200 minimum security residents at East Moline Correctional Center. Also to be constructed there is a multi-purpose building planned by Lakton, Ziegler, Terry & Associates, Inc. of Peoria.

Other correctional center projects and the respective firms selected by the Capital Development Board are:

Joliet—Major renovation of the East Cellhouse; Sartorius & Associates, Inc. of Joliet.

Statesville—Structural rehabilitation of the power house; Nakawatase, Rutkowski, Wynn & Y. Inc., Chicago. Also, providing a new kitchen in the Statesville area and various other improvements; Balsamo-Olsen Group, Inc., Oak Brook Terrace.

Dwight—Electrical system rehabilitation; WVP Corporation, Decatur.

Pontiac—Major remodeling and rehabilitation of hospital facilities; Andrew Heath & Associates, Ltd., Chicago.

Vandalia—Renovation of the dining facility for residents and installation of fire doors; both by Salogga, Bradley, Likins & Dillow, Decatur.

Menard Psychiatric Center (Chester)—Phase of the major renovation of North II Cellhouse; McLaughlin & Associates Architects, Inc., Chester.

Illinoisans will leave for rally

Over 1,000 Illinois state, county and municipal workers, members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), will board buses Friday afternoon for Washington, D.C., to participate in Solidarity Day activities on Saturday.

The AFSCME delegation will be the largest of any union from Illinois. Buses will leave from Chicago, Dixon, Macomb, Galesburg, Peoria, Rockford, Joliet, Centralia, Marion, Mount Vernon, Champaign, Springfield, Jacksonville and Vandalia.

The rally, initiated by the AFL-CIO and sponsored by over 100 other organizations, is expected to draw over 200,000 people to protest policies of the Reagan administration.

Leading the AFSCME Illinois delegation will be over 20 employees from the Dixon Developmental Center, state institution for the retarded in Dixon, Ill.

Dixon is President Ronald Reagan's home town. "We are going to Washington because we believe that Reagan's tax and spending policies will be a disaster for all working Americans," said Steve Cullen, executive director of AFSCME Illinois.

"Now, Wall Street admits that Reaganomics is a fraud," Cullen said. "It is apparent that his policies in many areas of government programs, and his tax give-aways to the rich and big business, will do great harm to state and local government services. And

"The selection of architects and engineers for these projects represents another important step taken by the administration to address, and successfully meet, the needs of the Illinois correctional system," Thompson said.

"Pres. Reagan has said that his economic program has the support of working people and union members. We will prove him wrong Sept. 19 in Washington."

Red Cross needs volunteer drivers

The Tri-City Chapter of the American Red Cross is in need of volunteer drivers to assist in the chapter's Motor Transportation Program. According to Miss Gwen O'Guin, director of the chapter, "This program, in its fifth year, has provided transportation for hundreds of individuals in the Quad-City area to hospitals and clinics in the Metro-East area, the explained."

Miss O'Guin is urging individuals to spare time on their hands. "If you have a valid driver's license; if you have a desire to become involved, to sacrifice your time to reach out and touch those in need, call the chapter and we will put your hands to work," Miss O'Guin said.

A detailed explanation of the program is available by calling the Red Cross office at 432-7184.

Illinois corn for Taiwan

Governor James R. Thompson, along with a trade delegation from the Republic of China, leading U.S. grain exporters and officials from seven other states, has signed a five-year, $5 billion trade agreement with Taiwan.

The agreement, the second U.S.-Taiwan pact reached in the last five years, involves sale of at least 17.2 million metric tons of corn, soybeans, wheat and barley and includes 18 grain producing companies.

"The United States and Illinois have been world export leaders of agricultural products," Thompson said. "This agreement will continue and expand that standing in the marketplace, and it reaffirms Illinois' commitment to being the leading grain exporter in the nation."

The pact signed Sept. 11 will supply Taiwan with more than 70 percent of its grain needs for the next five years and will increase the amount of grain trade between the U.S. and Taiwan by at least 20 percent over the previous agreement.

The agreement will mean minimum sales to Taiwan of 8.6 million metric tons of corn, 4.8 million metric tons of soybeans, 2.85 million metric tons of wheat and 800,000 metric tons of barley. Taiwan, the eighth largest overall trade partner with the U.S. is the 11th largest grain trader with U.S. agricultural firms and is in the top 10 of all traders in U.S. agricultural products.

SUSPICIOUS ACTIONS

John E. Barton, 23, who gave his address as general delivery, Sandoval, Ill., was taken to the Madison County jail at 8 a.m. Tuesday, pending the posting of $200 cash bond. He was stopped by Venice police at Second and Kerr streets Monday evening acting in what was described as a "suspicious manner." Barton has been charged with driving with an expired driver's license and unlawful use of a controlled substance, believed to be cannabis.

HOUSE BURGLARY

A dust mop was used to break a window and gain entry to the home of Harold and Dixie Farris, 1013 Market St., Madison, during the weekend. The house was completely ransacked. A list of items taken is being prepared for police.

Committee studies law

Weber says gambling cases must be handled individually

Every coin-operated machine in Granite City may have to bear a $50-a-year city license, from pinball machines to complex video games and from newspaper vending machines to pool tables, if an ordinance now being drafted is eventually adopted by the city council.

However, it seems likely that the city will drop its age restriction on operating amusement machines, which currently makes it unlawful for anyone under the age of 18 to operate such machines as pinball machines and video games.

During an informal meeting Friday in the mayor's conference room, two aldermen and several city officials discussed ways to simplify the current "jumbled mess" of city regulations which license juke boxes, cigarette machines, amusement machines and candy and food vending machines. Fees and regulations for each type vary. For general coin-operated candy and food vending machines, the license fee, per machine, currently varies from 50 cents to $2, according to the amount of money each machine requires to operate.

Coin-operated laundries, pool halls and establishments using other types of machines are covered under the city's business license ordinance, and some machines, such as newspaper vending machines, currently need no license.

Pinball machines, amusement devices and jukeboxes now pay a $10 city license fee, per machine, while cigarette machines are $7.50.

Attending Friday's session to discuss licenses for coin-operated machines were Aldermen Paul Fisk and Everett Morien, Mayor Paul Schuler, City Clerk Robert W. Stevens, City Attorney John Papa and Assistant Attorney Casper Nighossian, City Engineer Monroe Brewer and Stevens' assistant, Gail Valle.

Initially, the committee discussed the idea of continuing to license operators of amusement centers (those with four machines or more), and suppliers of amusement devices, and requiring that they register the serial number and type of machine for each game machine in each establishment.

Since many pinball games and video games are rotated from establishment to establishment regularly, it was decided that to attempt to keep track of which machines were in which establishments would create a burden on the city clerk's staff. "It would make for a heck of a bookkeeping system," Fisk suggested.

Nighossian said that it would be up to the proprietor of each establishment having games to notify the city when that specific machine has been moved.

Instead, the committee decided, it would be more practical to require to sell license stickers for coin-operated machines and to demand that the stickers be affixed on each machine. "As long as that machine is licensed with a Granite City license on it, it doesn't matter where it is," Fisk said. Nighossian asked what would be done if police or the enforcing inspector for the city finds an unlicensed machine in an establishment and the proprietor says he does not know who owns the machine. "Who do you charge?" he asked.

The committee decided that the proprietor of each establishment must be held responsible for seeing that all machines in that establishment are licensed or the owner would face a fine. The supplier of the machine also may be held accountable, it was indicated. Papa said the city's current law licensing proprietors and suppliers is being challenged in court and the city is having a difficult time showing that there is a correlation between the $500 license fee and the city's cost of enforcing the license ordinance.

"You can't have a licensing ordinance which is a money-raising ordinance solely. We can argue that ($50 per machine) cost is our cost of checking the license," he said, adding that if the city inspector checks the machine for a sticker five times a year, that would amount to $10 a check, which is a justifiable amount.

"Frankly, I think a $50 fee per machine is justified and we can eliminate the operator and proprietor licenses," Papa added.

Fisk noted, "If an operator has 100 machines, we are talking about $5,000 a year," and he indicated he wondered if that would drive any suppliers out of business. The committee agreed that the profit from the successful coin-operated game and vending machine would still make it profitable to supply the games, despite a $50 license.

"We are going to have a lot of flack on the fee," Fisk predicted. Nighossian suggested that the fine for having an unlicensed machine in an establishment should be $25 to $100 for the first offense, $150 or $200 for the second offense and higher for the third offense with an enforcement after the second offense that each day the violation occurs be considered a separate offense.

"The word will get out, especially if the penalty is stiff enough," Nighossian predicted.

Asked about penny gumball machines, Papa said the council may wish to exempt machines operated by charitable organizations, such as the Jaycees, or similar groups which place gumball machines at establishments. Asked about small vending machines such as the ones which return a small plastic ring or plastic animal for a quarter, Papa said he thought the $50 annual fee should apply to them. "I would have to say they cost the same to inspect."

Brewer said he fears that a blanket $50-a-year license on coin-operated machines would also include coin washing machines and might force apartment building owners to remove the machines they have there to service the needs of the tenants.

Committee members said they should investigate whether such machines are exempt because they are on private property. On the other side of the coin, games and machines in taverns and restaurants are in privately-owned property.

Nighossian said the ordinance could be written to exclude coin-operated washing machines and dryers, if the city council wished.

The question of an age limitation for playing pool, billiards, pinball machines and video games was brought up by Fisk, who contended that the city's current limitation of 18 is "totally unenforceable" and should be changed.

Nighossian said, "There is a serious legal question whether you can tell a child how to spend his money." Fisk showed a copy of a newspaper article predicting that the supreme court will decide this month whether youths under 18 have a constitutional right to play coin-operated amusement games. A 1978 Mesquite, Tex., ordinance banning minors from entering an amusement arcade unless accompanied by parent or guardian is being challenged.

The circuit court and U.S. District Court ruled that the ordinance was valid and in violation of the First Amendment to "social association." Mesquite appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Fisk proposed that the age limitation be eliminated and no objection was expressed. Papa then was asked to prepare a "tentative ordinance" for the council to study and amend. The ordinance would include the $500-a-year fee on all coin-operated devices in public places, to make the proprietor of every establishment responsible for seeing that every machine has a license sticker and setting the suggested fines for violating the ordinance.

The council can then decide whether it wishes to exempt machines placed by charitable organizations, whether to exempt washing machines, dryers and newspaper vending machines, and can make other changes deemed necessary after public comment on the proposal. The annual fee per machine also may be amended, if the council chooses.

State funds in warning zone again

The end-of-the-month available balance of the state's general fund dropped into the fiscal "warning zone" — $200 million or less — again in August, Comptroller Roland W. Burr said this week.

The balance on Aug. 31 was $184 million, a drop of $76 million from $260 million on July 31.

The comptroller said a sharp decline in federal funds — down $67 million or 24.3 percent in the last two months — plus a $48 million (12 percent) increase in public aid grants, including a medical assistance rise of $23 million, set the stage for the downturn in the general fund.

The new balance of $184 million is $13 million less than the balance on June 30, 1981, when the last fiscal year ended, and $22 million less than a year ago at the end of August.

Total general revenues in the first two months of 1981-82 were $1,220,000, $46 million or 3.6 percent below the same period last year. Expenditures in the first two months of this fiscal year were $1,233,000, $33 million or 1.9 percent over than last year.

Revenues from state sources are up $31 million or 2.1 percent this year, but the drop in federal funds offset this.

GC Scholarship Foundation to elect

In accordance with bylaws of the Granite City Scholarship Foundation, the annual meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 22, at Granite City High School South in the office of the principal, James Damont.

Purpose of the meeting is to elect 1981-82 officers and to transact any other business.

"We hope that at least one representative from each member organization will attend the meeting," President Norman Garrett commented.

Madison County State's Attorney Don Weber says he has not, as some have perceived, changed his policy on gambling and games of chance. Rather, he says he has had to look at each individual case as it has come before him.

Weber's election campaign included promises that he would allow certain "gambling" when it benefited charities. He says he hasn't reneged on those promises.

After he was first elected, he said, the case of the Bethalto Jaycees' mouse stand came up. The Jaycees set up a booth at the homecoming and sold 25 cents for each mouse, which hole the mouse would run into when released.

"I don't think that's gambling," Weber said in a telephone interview. "The people know that 25 cents is a contribution."

Then, Weber said, came up the case involving the Granite City Eagles Club. That had slot machines with proceeds going to charitable causes.

Weber said he had to stop the operation for two reasons: First, it was a "standing enterprise," something that ran all year, rather than just once. Second, because the machines are costly to set up, "somebody in professional gambling is making money," he said.

"I really haven't changed anything. It's just that people interpret it that way," Weber said. "I look at it on a case-by-case basis, and I am trying to lay down general guidelines."

Those general guidelines include four major points, he said, is very First, the people running the game must donate their time entirely without compensation. They must also be members of the organization sponsoring the game.

Second, every penny of the money has to go to charity.

Third, the limit on the bet should be 25 cents. Fifty cents, he said, is very questionable, and $1 per chance is gambling. "People can lose a lot of money at $1 per chance," he said.

Fourth, the people running the game should police the area themselves.

Lions seek Candy Day fund volunteers

The Madison Lions Club is seeking helpers for Lions of Illinois Candy Day on Friday, Oct. 9.

The duties? Give away candy, smile, say hello to friends and neighbors, and accept donations to help the blind, visually handicapped, deaf, and hearing impaired.

Lions are teaming up to raise $1.2 million to be used locally and statewide. "I think the Lions have the most fun of any service organization when we get together for fund raising," said Donald L. Bridick, Madison chief of police, club Candy Day volunteer chairman.

"We like to have fun, raising as well as fund-raising. On the serious side, we get a lot out of it, knowing we are helping others."

Last year, the club had 16 volunteers and 16 Lions working on Candy Day. This year, the club wants to double the number.

"We want everyone to help us — even if you are a member of another service organization," the chairman said. He can be reached at 876-3300.

Workers must be at least 16 years old. Each volunteer will wear a special, high-visibility apron and a cap. Each will have a canister for contributions and a supply of candy to give away.

"Being a volunteer on Candy Day is a perfect service opportunity for people who don't have time to work year-long in a club," he said. "You can help and have fun, and you only have to put in a couple of hours."

Shirts are to be arranged throughout the day, with the busiest hours in the morning and evening when people are going to or leaving work. Club members will be contacting church groups, senior citizens, neighbors, friends, relatives and others to invite them to help.

Bridal registry at phone center

Bridal registries are "something old" — but the fact that Illinois Bell is now offering a bridal registry service is "something new."

The "wedding gift service" is available at all of Bell's 76 PhoneCenter Stores, located throughout the state. Bridal registry is a feature of the service, said Grace Jakubs of Bell's residence marketing planning. "But it's new for us and represents another step in establishing Illinois Bell in the retailing market."

Family members and friends can purchase Bell's Design Line telephones in the same way china, silverware and linens are obtained as shower or wedding gifts.

"When the bride-to-be registers her choice of phones at a PhoneCenter Store, her selection will be placed in a centralized record accessible to sales clerks at any PhoneCenter Store. This will enable customers throughout the state to select a gift phone of her choice, no matter where the bride registers."

Grace Jakubs said, "more than 100,000 couples were married in Illinois during 1979 and that figure is increasing every year."

"Illinois Bell is introducing wedding gift service at this time to take advantage of the popularity of fall weddings. Contrary to popular belief, more weddings are held during the last half of the year than in the first half."

"There is no charge for brides to register."

3-day festival to open overpass

Granite City Mayor Paul Schuler has set Oct. 16 as the first day of a three-day event to celebrate the completion of the 19th Street overpass project.

Preliminary plans call for carnival rides and possibly a soap box derby to be held with areas reserved for organizations or other interested persons to set up booths for games, food and other activities.

Because of the short notice of the celebration, all organizations interested in having booths at the three-day event and all children who have an interest in competing in the soap box derby have been asked to contact the office of David Nolan, administrative assistant to the mayor, as soon as possible. Further information about the celebration is available from Nolan by calling 492-6215.

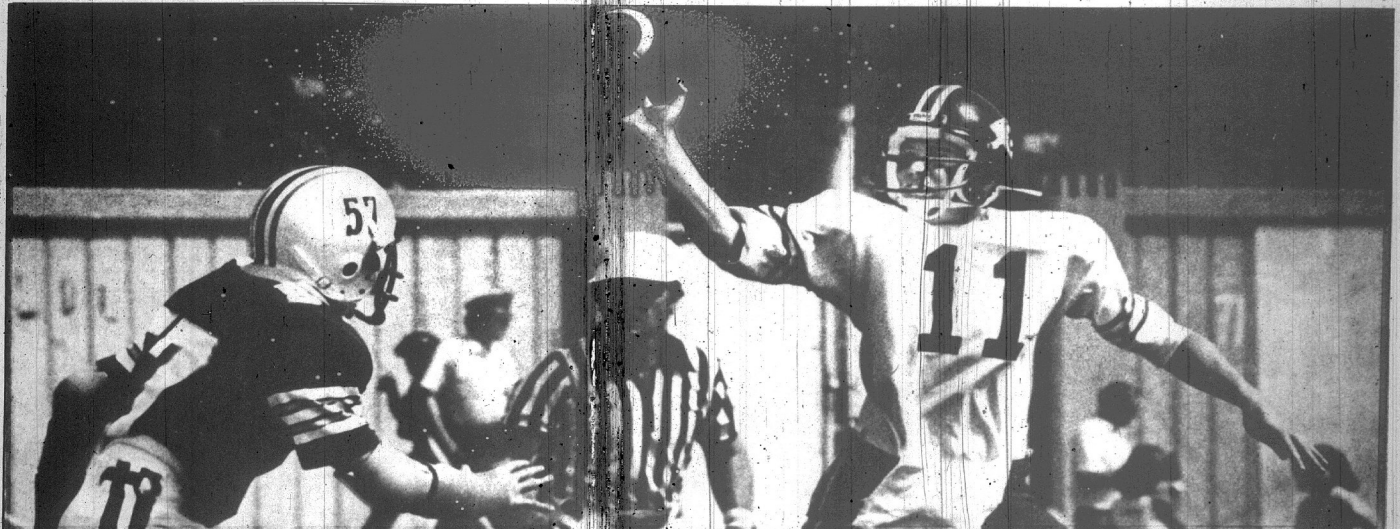

A unique ceremony also is being planned to open the overpass which is to kick-off the three-day celebration.

PARKING LOT HOCKEY firemen style is played Saturday afternoon at the Madison County Firemen's Hall on Collinsville Road. The Long Lake Volunteer Fire Department's Team Two, McKechan: 'No excuses—we got beat'

By PETE HAYES
Sports Editor
of the Press-Record

BELLEVILLE — All his coaching career, he had waited for this day. Jerry McKechan, former player, had finally returned as head football coach at his old school, Granite City South. But McKechan will have to wait a while longer for his first victory following Saturday 62-0 humiliation at the hands of defending Southwest Conference champ Belleville East.

East rolled up an amazing 493 total yards of offense enroute to its eighth straight victory over the Warriors, who were coming off an 0-9 record of last season.

McKechan, who became head coach after the resignation of former head man Stan Wojcik after last season, was reconciled to the defeat. "We've got no excuses," he said. "We just got beat. There are some key people hurt for us and getting the late start (because of the teachers' walkout in Granite City) set us back some. But East's got a heck of a ball club.

"We did some things wrong today. But we'll get better."

It wasn't that East coach Dean Renn was purposely trying to run the score up. Everybody on the Lancers' bench got into the game. In fact, East used four quarterbacks. It just seemed that even when things went wrong for the Lancers, they came out smelling like a rose. "We try to control the score by substitution," said Renn. "I don't think you have to beat a team by 62 points to prove you're better."

"But we felt we had to play the starters at least the first half. Everybody played, though."

Leaving the starters in the entire first half proved more than enough for East. The Lancers had rolled up a 42-0 intermission lead and the outcome hadn't been in doubt since the first quarter. The first six times the Lancers had the ball, they scored. They led 21-0 at the end of the first quarter. Perhaps the worst thing that happened all day for them was that placekicker, Kendall Nix missed his first extra point attempt of the afternoon. But they got it back on a two-point conversion following their second touchdown.

To show just how frustrating was the South cause, consider this play: With 4:50 remaining in the second quarter, a South punt by Rick Daily had the Lancers pinned back on their own 12 yard line. Two straight illegal motion penalties made it first-and-10 at the three-yard line. But an off-side run by fullback John Gregorich picked up 30 yards. As he was tackled, he lateralized the ball to teammate Billy Fields who raced untouched down the middle of the field the remaining 61 yards for the touchdown. Even when things went wrong, they were right.

Gregorich recalled the play. "My first thought was the touchdown," he said. "Then I saw the defensive man over on the right and Billy on my left. So I moved him to my right (the defender) and pitched it back to Billy."

On the South side of things, it was obvious early what the Warriors game plan would be — P-A-S-S. Quarterback John Linhart, who could be one of the most prolific signal-callers ever to play at South, didn't get much of an opportunity to show what he could do against East. But nonetheless he was 16-of-25 through the air for 131 yards. That was most of South's offense. The Warriors managed only 97 total yards on the ground.

East senior quarterback Rick Schmidt started and played all of the first half. And he picked the South secondary apart. First he found running room around the right side and scampered six yards himself to make it 6-0. After a 70 yard touchdown run on a reverse by Tim Bachman had made it 14-0.

Lanphier runs to North title

GRANITE CITY — Springfield Lanphier showed surprising early-season strength and won the 10th annual Granite City North Cross Country Invitational here Saturday.

Lanphier finished the meet with 85 points, plenty to beat out second-place Kirkwood which finished with 105. Hazelwood Central was third with 135. The individual winner was Belleville East's Fred Gompers, who finished in a time of 13:42. Larry Henze of Kirkwood was second in 13:44. "It's tough to break 14:00 on our course any time," said North coach Pete Robinson. "But we had two guys do it today. I thought the area would be weak this season. But after these times this early in the season, I might be wrong."

East St. Louis Lincoln finished fourth with 175 points, followed by O'Fallon 185, East St. Louis 187, East 192, Granite City South 206, Belleville West 204 and Hazelwood East 231 to round out the top ten. Granite City North finished 14th in the 21-team field with 246 points.

South's David McLean was the highest local finisher in fourth place with a time of 14:03 and teammate Jim McQuaid was 24th. North's highest finisher was Ken Meyer in 26th. Hazelwood Central won the girls' division and East St. Louis won the freshman-sophomore division.

A long afternoon

Home preserved food is longlasting, nutritious

Home-preserved food can last as long, and be as nutritious as commercially canned food, says a food storage expert. But you have to do it right.

"If it's handled and processed properly, home-preserved food can have the same shelf life as commercially canned food," says D. Delos Ellsworth, director of the Ezra Taft Benson Institute in Provo, Utah, which specializes in home storage and gardening.

Home-canned foods can have a shelf life of two to five years, depending on the storage environment, he says. But only if you process it carefully according to instructions provided by extension offices and the major bottling companies. Once preserved, food is best kept below 70 degrees Fahrenheit—preferably between 45 and 55. Food stored above 70 has a significantly shortened shelf life.

Experts from the Benson Institute have traveled extensively to learn and teach food storage and gardening techniques to people throughout the world. The institute has researched food storage because of the emphasis on storage given by the leaders of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, which sponsors the institute at Brigham Young University. For decades, LDS Church leaders have counseled members to prepare for emergencies by having a year's supply of food, clothing and other necessities and to grow a home garden.

And the garden is a significant part of an ideal home storage program, Ellsworth says.

"It's ideal if people produce as much of their own food as they can," he says. "They don't have to have an entire year's supply in cans and cartons. Some of it can be in the ground." A home garden supplies vitamins, minerals and roughage in a fresh form. Additionally, some vegetables—green, leafy ones and tomatoes—grow well indoors year-round as long as they have direct or reflected sunlight.

The rest of a home food storage should include only foods that you're used to eating, Ellsworth says. "The first thing to remember is that someday you may be eating what you store." And the first thing to consider in planning garden foods for home storage is to plant the foods that you already frequently use in your diet.

Many people store staples such as powdered milk, wheat and honey, but those foods aren't part of their normal diet, he says. People changing from their usual diet to one of only staples or dehydrated foods may become ill and even require hospitalization. "Which is the last thing you want in an emergency," he says.

So instead of storing only staple food items, keep track of what you eat for two weeks and build a storage program around that, Ellsworth says. Most people don't prepare a wide variety of foods at home; they prepare the same things every few weeks. So by recording what you eat for two weeks and multiplying it by 26—again, some by modification—you can develop a shopping list of what you need for storage. If you want to include storage items such as dried fruits or dehydrated eggs, begin incorporating them into your diet, he says.

"And don't dry foods just because drying is popular now," he says. "Do it because your family likes to eat dried foods."

Ellsworth gives these home storage guidelines:

—Store a variety of foods that are readily available and not too costly and that comprise a balanced diet. Store foods that have the nutrients you need for a balanced diet—fats, carbohydrates, protein, vitamins and minerals.

—Buy storage foods in the quantity your family uses. Even if smaller packages cost more per ounce, you save by avoiding the waste and contamination of a large opened container which can't be used completely before it spoils.

—Your first storage priority should be for the basics: grains, legumes, flour, dry milk, sugar, honey, salt, oil and water. The second priority is fruits and vegetables, followed by items like eggs, cheese or meat substitutes.

—Don't make a home storage system a one-time panic shopping trip that depletes your savings account as well as the local supermarket shelves. Instead, accumulate a supply slowly and carefully. It will cost less, and you'll probably store items you can use instead of food purchased hurriedly or frantically.

"Begin thinking of storage foods as part of an expanded regular food supply which is rotated through daily use," he says. Your food storage shouldn't be a emergency supply slashed in a corner of your basement. If it is, the limited shelf life of even canned dehydrated foods will eventually render your storage foods useless.

Railway wants to sell Delaware line

Norfolk and Western Railway has signed a letter of intent for sale of the common stock of Delaware and Hudson Railway to Guilford Transportation Industries. Guilford has already purchased the Maine Central Railroad and agreed to purchase the Boston and Maine.

To be consummated, the transaction would require approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, as well as the United States Railway Association, a governmental agency that has made loans to DHI. It also is conditioned on approval by the ICC of Guilford's proposed acquisition of the Boston and Maine. DHI was acquired by a Norfolk subsidiary, Dereco, in 1968, by order of the ICC, as a condition of NW's consolidation with the Nickel Plate and Wabash railroads. The letter of intent provides that NW lease up to 25 locomotives to DHI upon execution of the formal acquisition agreement, and that NW in turn turn up to 200 coal hopper cars from DHI.

Rewards for leads or arson in Illinois

Governor James R. Thompson on Tuesday presented monetary awards to three people who provided investigators with information that led to the arrest and conviction of three suspected arsonists.

"Let these awards be a warning to arsonists. People are not willing to stand by and do nothing while those who seek to destroy innocent people's lives escape justice," the governor said. "Arson is something that simply will not be tolerated in Illinois."

Thompson announced formation of the Illinois Arson Award Program on Feb. 19 in an effort to combat arson in Illinois. Tuesday's awards, the first to be presented, total $2,000.

Award recipients were: Neveer Dixon of St. Louis—$1,000.

While driving through East St. Louis, Dixon saw a man hurl a burning object into a multi-family dwelling.

Dixon followed the suspect to an all-night market and assisted the security guard there in apprehending the suspect.

The suspect was arrested and later pleaded guilty to arson. Sentencing is pending.

Elizabeth Marie McFarland of Rockford—$500.

Mrs. McFarland reported to arson investigators that she had overheard a conversation about setting a local hotel fire, which resulted in the death of one person.

Her information hastened the investigation and led to the conviction of a suspect on charges of first-degree murder, aggravated arson and arson.

The sentencing is pending.

Robert Wana of Zion—$500.

Wana saw two suspects running from the scene of a house explosion. Their clothes were on fire. After he helped them put out the fire on their clothing, he saw them drive off.

Manak reported the license number and a description of the vehicle to police, information that led to the arrest and conviction of one of the suspects.

Nominations for possible award recipients can be submitted to the Illinois

GC may appeal loss of clean air grant

Granite City officials may appeal to Governor Jim Thompson for reconsideration of an action by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA) revoking a $44,953 federal EPA grant which supported 45 percent of the city's air pollution control program.

The action, which has apparently not been officially announced to Granite City aldermen, was the result of layoffs in the city's air pollution control department which, the USEPA contends, violated the terms of the agreement between the EPA and the city.

The former head of the city's air pollution control department, Paula Case, and one technician were terminated in mid-July, effective Sept. 1. However, the letters were not read to the city council. Alderman Paul

Ray Bowler, chairman of the city's finance committee, said he was unaware of loss of the grant until contacted by the Press-Record this morning.

City Engineer Monroe Brewer, who assumed control of the city's air pollution department when Mrs. Case was terminated, read the letters during last week's meeting of the city's air pollution control board.

The advance agenda for that meeting carried only the item, "Status of existing grant."

Two members of the city's air pollution control committee, chairman Casner Skubish and Carl Kittel, met with Brewer, David Nolan, administrative aide to Mayor Paul Schuler, and William Ratter, president of the city's air pollution control board, after the IEPA termination letter was received and formulated a plan to try and meet the terms of the federal grant with present personnel.

The IEPA was informed last month that Brewer would devote two hours a day to air pollution control, Gary Brooks, technician, would continue to devote 40 hours a week to checking monitors and doing other air pollution control work. Secretary Rosalee Perigen would work two hours a day on air pollution control and three other city employees, Nolan, Traffic Engineer Ed Schulze, and Michael DeRuntz, assistant to Brewer, would be available part-time, if needed, to assist in the air pollution effort.

All would take the necessary training the city agreed.

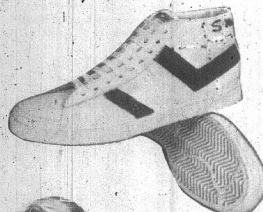

The state has not responded. Daniel Goodwin, manager of air pollution control for the IEPA, has said that he feels the state should take over the city's federal grant and then give all or part of it back to the city under a new agreement yet to be worked out. He said he has discussed that option with Brewer, but the city has made no effort to implement or reject that offer.

St. John United bazaar, festival planned Oct. 18

St. John United Church of Christ, 2901 Nameoki Road, has announced Oct. 18 as the date for their fifth annual Fall Festival, according to Ruth McDonald, general chairman of the all-church event sponsored by the Stewardship Committee.

Craft items and homemade delicacies will again predominate the bazaar segment of the festival according to Linda Sturman and Sara Bryant, bazaar co-chairmen.

The festival committee decided to change the bill-of-fare from chicken to an all-you-can-eat sausage supper this year, according to Jim Singleton, sausage supper chairman. Tickets are $4 for adults, $1.75 for children under 10, and children under 5 are free.

Again this year, the St. John Brotherhood will man the old-fashioned Butcher Shoppe headed by Jim Engelke and Don Robertson. The shoppe will feature homemade headcheese, liver sausage, and blood sausage at $2.10 per pound, pork sausage at $2 per pound, and whole hams at $1.60 per pound. Country bacon will also be sold. Quantities will be limited, but advance orders for meats may be made by calling Jim Engelke (451-9488) or Don Robertson (876-0168) after Sept. 17.

Bill allows pensions, aid payments directly to bank

Governor James R. Thompson signed legislation Friday that allows state pension or assistance payments to be directly deposited in the accounts of those persons receiving the checks.

"This will make payments to those who are not as mobile, such as some retirees, the aged, blind and disabled, more convenient. These electronic transactions also are safer from theft or loss due to mishandled mail," the governor said.

Senate Bill 299 authorizes the comptroller and the treasurer to make the pension or public aid payments directly to bank savings and loan association or credit union as specified by the recipient.

The measure was sponsored by Senator John Davidson of Springfield and Representative Josephine Oblinger of Sherman.

The governor also signed House Bill 1863, which adds the subject of energy efficiency to examinations taken by architects for certification.

The bill was sponsored by Representative Diana Nelson of LaGrange and Senator John Nimrod of Glenview.

Average state employee being paid $15,559

The average annual salary for state employees working for the constitutional offices, the 23 major cabinet-level departments and the higher education systems was $15,559 at the end of 1980, Comptroller Roland W. Burris reported this week.

Of those three major categories, Burris said that higher education had the highest average ($15,815), the cabinet departments $15,750 and the constitutional offices of government, lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state, comptroller and treasurer ranked third ($15,100).

In his monthly fiscal report, Burris presented a special study of state employment in the major agencies.

At full employment, the state payroll averages 120,000 employees. The special study examines 108,000 of these.

The present Illinois economic picture finds that workers' paychecks climbed substantially in the last year in Illinois. The average earnings inched up only two percent, about the same as in 1980, Burris said. Although the Illinois job outlook is slightly improved, more people are entering the labor force and looking for jobs.

As the fiscal outlook of state government, July was a positive month with revenues running $63 million higher than expenditures.

Highlights of the special report on state employment: — Symbolizing the quest for career professionalization in state government, the Department of Law Enforcement, with 3,000 employees statewide, has grown 6.7 percent in the last three years and average annual salaries have increased by $5,168 or 35 percent.

— Resignations and turn-overs in the state universities' merit system have slowed in the last three years, though a uniform pay plan has never been implemented.

— Northern Illinois University has undergone the most dramatic restructuring of staff with these results: Staff positions dropped from 5,199 to 5,171 in the last three years, but average annual staff salaries climbed from $9,385 to $15,550, up 66.2 percent, in the same period.

Higher education average annual salaries rose from $12,551 in December 1977 to $15,815 by the end of 1980.

The state's six constitutional officers have varied personnel programs. Half are based on personnel tests and merit systems, and the other half negotiate salaries and hire on the basis of interview appointments.

The governor's office pays top dollar (at the end of 1980) with a $19,766 annual salary average. The secretary of state is the lowest of the six with a salary average of $13,308 annually.

The Department of Personnel, which structures the pay levels and practices for 60,000 employees in 23 cabinet-level agencies under the governor, has boosted salaries from an average annual figure of $12,306 in December 1977 to $15,754 by the end of 1980.

Reviewing the private job sector, Burris noted substantial growth in the earning power of Illinois workers in the year ended on June 30, 1981.

In average weekly pay, manufacturing pay rose 15.1 percent from $313 a year ago to $361; construction rose 6.2 percent from $466 last year to $495; and wholesale and retail increased 7.2 percent from $224 in June 1980 to $241 in June 1981.

Inflation and taxes took their toll, with spendable earnings held to a growth of two percent. As a result, more family members are hunting jobs.

The over-16 population in Illinois increased by 20,000 in the past year, and the number of people either looking for jobs or working increased by 110,000.

"With mixed economic news nationally and the Illinois economy still dragging, there is this heartening note," Burris commented. "The Illinois unemployment rate dropped to 7.5 percent in July, down from nine percent in March."

Review fiesta plans

Plans for the Mexican Honorary Commission's traditional fall fiesta, scheduled at 8 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 19, were reviewed at last week's meeting of the MHC Auxiliary.

The group met in the MHC Hall, 1801 Spruce St. Twenty-eight members were present and Mrs. Liss Fensterman presided.

Additional kitchen workers are needed for the fiesta, and volunteers may contact Linda Garcia, kitchen chairman, to offer their services.

Entertainment will start at 8 p.m. Sept. 19, with a variety show, featuring the traditional Mexican Hat Dance.

Dancing to the music of the Los Amigos Band will follow. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Preliminary plans also were discussed for the annual Christmas party, set Saturday, Dec. 12.

The event will include a dinner at 2 p.m., a visit by Santa at 4:30 p.m., breaking of the pinatas at 5 p.m. and dancing to follow.

Mrs. Toni Short volunteered to decorate the hall for the party. Mrs. Fensterman advised a charge will be made for those attending who are not MHC members.

Several future fund-raising activities were explored, led by Mrs. Vicki Stich, ways and means chairman, and sponsoring an "Enchilada Night" at the MHC Hall was proposed. The group voted to recommend the suggestion to the commission's board of directors.

After the business session, a social hour was held which included a demonstration by Mrs. Mary Bridick on the art of making pinatas to dampings.

Refreshments were served and Mrs. Lily Valencia was awarded a prize.

Study facts of 'Agent Orange'

A group of scientists and veterans' representatives who met in Washington to advise the Veterans Administration on dealing with the Agent Orange controversy, was asked to speak out on the subject of "help veterans and news media understand what is known about Agent Orange."

Robert P. Nimmo, new head of the Veterans Administration, made the request in opening remarks before an Aug. 10 meeting of the Advisory Committee on the Health-Related Effects of Herbicides.

In remarks recorded earlier, the Administrator of Veterans Affairs added,

"Obviously the many studies under way need to be completed before we have all the answers. But it seems to me as a layman that you already have established a solid basis for correcting some of the misinformation that continues to be circulated."

Scientific studies related to Agent Orange which were discussed by the Advisory Committee included:

An epidemiological study designed by the UCLA School of Public Health;

An analysis of world literature related to herbicides being conducted by an independent contractor;

A study of birth defects underway at the Center for Disease Control, Atlanta; and,

A follow-up study of the health of some 1,200 air crew members who received massive exposure to Agent Orange and other herbicides during spraying operations in Vietnam.

"The emotional issue of Agent Orange is by far the most frustrating problem I am facing in my new role with the federal government," Nimmo told the group.

"I wish the facts were available that would allow reasonable people to say that exposure to Agent Orange in Vietnam does have a direct cause and effect relationship to the current and future health of veterans, or that the facts would let us, in good conscience, reassure those veterans and their families that they have nothing to fear from that experience," he added.

Nimmo also told his advisers, "VA is completely dependent on the scientific community for our course of action. In all areas VA deals with the latest information on the basis of the latest validated information. We have no independent position on Agent Orange."

"There are many people who are sincerely and deeply concerned about Agent Orange who could get a measure of relief from anxiety by knowing the facts and perspectives who can provide."

The measure takes effect Jan. 1, 1982.

The sponsors of the bill were Representative Jim Reilly of Jacksonville and Senator Prescott Bloom of Peoria and Terry Bruce of Olney.

Open meeting law revised

Governor James R. Thompson has signed legislation that revises the state's 24-year-old Open Meeting Act.

"Nearly everyone agrees that the current law is too vague in many ways," the governor said. "Attorney General Tyrone Fahner and the sponsors have worked long and hard to make significant changes in the law and to clarify other portions of it. This measure will help ensure that the news media and the public have access to public business and that the doors to government are open when they should be."

The measure establishes a new definition of meeting as any gathering of a majority of a quorum of the members of a public body held for the purpose of discussing public business.

House Bill 411 also provides that meetings to discuss pending or imminent legislation may be held behind closed doors. In addition, it allows closed meetings in certain other instances but holds that no final action may be taken at a closed meeting. Public notice of all meetings, whether they are open or closed, must be given.

The legislation also requires that minutes be kept of all meetings and it provides procedures for the release of those minutes to the public.

Persons other than the news media are allowed to record proceedings of open meetings under the bill. The public also may bring a civil action in situations in which provisions of the act have not been met.

The measure takes effect Jan. 1, 1982.

The sponsors of the bill were Representative Jim Reilly of Jacksonville and Senator Prescott Bloom of Peoria and Terry Bruce of Olney.

State orders constant level for Horseshoe

By GARY SCHNEIDER

The Metro East Sanitary District has been ordered to maintain the water level of Horseshoe Lake at the top of the overflow spillway, unless there is a need to lower it temporarily for drainage or wildlife management purposes, Donald R. Vonnahme, deputy director of the Division of Water Resources of the Illinois Transportation, said last week.

Vonnahme ordered that the lake be maintained at 403.7 feet (above sea level) at all times, unless the sanitary district feels it is necessary to lower the lake at times for flood control purposes or the Department of Conservation, with the concurrence of the sanitary district, wishes the level lowered for fish and wildlife management purposes, such as to plant mullet in the lake.

Vonnahme said the order was in response to "a number of complaints" about the low level of the lake recently. The wheel which is used to manually lower and raise the gates at the spillway was put in the possession of Frank Mehelic, highway superintendent of Nantook Township, and the lake level was lowered, critics charge, saying that they believe the fish population was endangered and the lake was too low for boats or duck hunters to use it.

Mehelic agrees he has the controls to the lake, but said he only brought the lake to an acceptable level to adequately drain Nantook Township in times of heavy rains.

Walter "Shang" Greathouse, president of the sanitary district's board of trustees, said he felt he was caught between two feuding parties — Mehelic and landowner Bill Nichols — and sought assistance from the Division of Water Resources in determining what the level of the lake should be.

Vonnahme, a professional engineer, responded that he believes the gates at the overflow structure should be kept closed at all times, which should keep the lake level at 403.7 feet. The effect of two 36-inch culverts at the southwest tip of the lake, near Canteen Lake, on the level of the lake is yet to be determined and will be the subject of a field investigation to be conducted tomorrow by Cae Grintjes, an engineer with the Division of Water Resources. Officials of the sanitary district and of the Department of Conservation have been invited to accompany Grintjes on the inspection, Vonnahme said.

Critics of Mehelic allege that he is the one responsible for having the culverts broken several times, allowing the lake to drain. Mehelic contends that he has only broken the sealed culverts open one time, and that was during a potential flooding situation in the township and was done with Greathouse's permission. Vonnahme said in his letter that if it is determined that the two 36-inch culverts affect the level of the lake, they should be kept sealed. "If the culverts have no effect on the level of Horseshoe Lake, then MESD may operate them in any manner the district deems appropriate," the letter said.

"Hopefully, with the reaffirmation of the operating procedure for structure 'A' (the overflow spillway) and a determination of how structure 'B' (the 36-inch culverts) must be handled, complaints concerning the level of Horseshoe Lake will cease," Vonnahme told Greathouse in the letter.

WORKSHOPS IN BOOK ARTS DURING FALL

As part of its four-month long Festival of the Book Arts, Missouri Botanical (Shaw's) Garden will hold workshops and lectures on bookbinding, paper marbling, calligraphy, and book restoration.

Bernard Middleton, a bookbinder whose work is exhibited in the permanent collections of the British Library, the Royal Library of The Hague and other museums and private collections, will lead two leather bookbinding workshops for students with previous bookbinding experience. Sept. 18-19 and Sept. 21-24. Cost of the workshops is $200 per student, and the fee includes all materials.

For those who are interested in bookbinding but have no previous experience, there will be two elementary bookbinding courses, the first scheduled for Saturdays, Sept. 26 through Oct. 24, and the second for Saturdays, Oct. 31 through Dec. 5.

For those who are interested in bookbinding but have no previous experience, there will be two elementary bookbinding courses, the first scheduled for Saturdays, Sept. 26 through Oct. 24, and the second for Saturdays, Oct. 31 through Dec. 5.

EFFORT TO REDUCE INFANT MORTALITY

Forty grants totaling nearly $9 million will be awarded to 30 agencies and institutions by the Illinois Department of Public Health during fiscal year 1982 to assist in implementation of the state's maternal and child health plan.

Primary objective of this plan is the reduction of infant mortality in Illinois. Twenty-four of the grants, providing $4.5 million, are slated for programs which provide comprehensive prenatal and preconceptional care services, especially for high-risk populations.
